A Democratic Church Let Them Dance England as Jobber Presidents and Kings

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1921.

Cardinal Gibbons is dead. His career proves the wisdom and the democracy that rules the Roman Catholic Church. A million children in the United States today, five times that number, have a better chance than Cardinal Gibbons had in his childhood. The Catholic Church offers its highest places, regardless of birth or wealth, and it lives.

Mr. Smith, boss of public schools at Morgantown, West Virginia, has a rule. Any public school teacher that attends dances will lose his or her job. Mr. Smith must know a good deal more, for instance, than the Supreme Power that permitted David to rule over Israel in spite of his dancing before the ark.

If Mr. Smith knew a little more he would know that the most important thing in a teacher, next to actual knowledge, is cheerfulness. Dancing and, for a few minutes, forgetting miserably low salaries, might increase the teacher's cheerfulness.

Albert Malsin, who understands business, calls attention to the fact that in spite of foolish shilly-shallying and dilly-dallying on the Russian question, the United States will soon be benefited by Russian trade.

The intelligent English do not allow sentiment, or any little thing like a murdered imperial family, to interfere with business. They will sell to Russia at a good profit, and buy in the United States to sell in Russia—after having exhausted the supplies of England and her colonies. Thus the United States, willy-nilly, will be dealing with Russia, England making a comfortable "rake-off" on every transaction.

This will interest President Harding, also a business man. Perhaps he will arrange to have the United States do business with Russia at first hand, without making England a clearing house or profit-taking middleman.

Holland plans to keep the system of royalty, but to allow the people to elect the King. We do that now in the United States, but for four years, not a lifetime. Presidents of the United States have more power than any King, now that the Czar is buried, and the Kaiser exported. One of the Presidents has recently proved it.

The income of the United States is said to be above fifty billions. Income and excess profit taxes, according to Mr. Mellon, will amount to about three billions. Actual collection of income tax, therefore, amounts to about 6 per cent. of the total. Many little people are exempted by law. The exemption of big people "came otherwise," as Caliban said of the stars.

The apparent fact is that in the United States the income tax as planned cannot be collected. Therefore it must be changed to be made efficient.

The Allies "positively must have twenty billions of gold marks from Germany by May 1," and red revolution, just how serious is not known, breaks out in Germany.

At first England "helped" France collect thirty billions from Russia. No collecting was done. Now England is dealing with Russia, forgetting all about the French thirty billions. At present England is "helping" France to collect fifty-five billions from Germany. Presently you may have England forgetting the phantom billions and attending exclusively to German business. The news from Berlin last night, with reasonable allowance for inaccuracy and exaggeration, was not pleasant. The Allies may, after all, succeed in forcing anarchy on Germany, in which case good-bye to any payment. It would be wise to take NOW what the Germans actually have to give—about five times as much as Bismarck took from France fifty years ago.

Which would YOU prefer—a FEW billions from Germany now or many billions later, PERHAPS?

Meat packers of Chicago and their employes have compromised their difficulties and reached an agreement. President Harding congratulates both sides, and well he may, assuming that a just agreement has been reached.

The important thing for workers and business men both at this time is to produce, sell and keep the wheels going. An automobile continued to coast after the gas has been cut off. In the United States the automobile of business has been coasting lately. If left alone it would stop. Workers and business men should think more about applying power than about fighting each other. Put in gas and then "step on it," or you'll slow down disastrously.

German Security Police Lose 7 Dead and 11 Wounded in Recapture of Eisleben

By International News Service.

Berlin, March 25.—The Security Police have recaptured Eisleben from the Communists, after a violent struggle, the government announced today.

The police casualties were seven killed and eleven wounded. The Red casualties are put at forty killed and wounded. Forty arrests were made.

Between thirty and forty houses in Eisleben were destroyed by fire.

Communist ringleaders who are under arrest are said to have confessed that the dynamiting of the Victory column in this city was to have been the signal for a general "Red" uprising throughout Germany. They were frustrated by the vigilance of the Berlin police, and the Victory column still stands today.

Although fighting between Communists and security police was reported from Eisleben and other industrial centres in the Elbe Valley, the indications today were that the "Red" uprising would be shortlived. However, strong precautions are being taken to deal with an outbreak in this city on Sunday.

The government has adopted a conciliatory attitude towards the Communists and has not attempted to employ regular troops against them. Government officials complain that their position has been weakened by the attitude of the allies.

Fireman Saves Nine Lives in One

A cat may look at a king but it isn't often a cat is rescued from a fire and carried down a ladder by a fireman.

This was the experience today of "Wilgo," the pet tiger cat of Mrs. M. Trice, colored, of No. 151 Columbus avenue. Wilgo fell asleep in the closet of a lodger on the third floor. Through some undetermined cause a fire started in the same closet.

Roy Danforth of Protective 3, running up a ladder, tore open the closet door, seized Wilgo and hurried down the ladder. The fire was extinguished with small loss.

BROUGH HEARING SET FOR NEXT THURSDAY

Dr. David D. Brough, dismissed as deputy health commissioner of Boston for alleged incompetence and neglect of duty, will be given a public hearing next Thursday by Health Commissioner W. C. Woodward, who discharged him.

The hearing will begin at 10 o'clock in the morning in the health department headquarters on the eleventh floor of City Hall Annex, it was announced today.

At that time, it is expected, the whole controversy between Dr. Brough and his chief will be aired, and Commissioner Woodward will be obliged to cite specific instances of incompetence and neglect.

The discharged deputy will be represented by Attorneys John P. Feeney and Timothy Callaghan, Corporation Counsel Arthur D. Hill or some member of his staff will represent the health department.

Commissioner Woodward's dismissal of Dr. Brough, who had been twenty-seven years in the city health department, caused a sensation when it was announced some days ago.

Commissioner Woodward at first was quoted as saying he would grant no hearing to the discharged official, and that Brough was not entitled to a hearing.

He is understood to have informed Dr. Brough's counsel, however, that the charges against the ousted deputy were "pretty specific."

RESCUES FIREMAN FROM DEATH

Stanley Keck, Football Captain, Saves Life at Princeton Blaze; Loss $150,000

Princeton, N. J., March 25.—Stanley Keck, captain of the 1922 Princeton football team and tackle on the All-American team of last Fall, was the hero of a $150,000 blaze at the university today.

Keck rushed into the burning Princeton Tower Club, a new building used as a dormitory, library and war memorial hall, and carried from the blazing structure Emil Ristvaiter, a prostrate fireman who was seen to fall down a staircase into the fire debris on the first floor.

The building was destroyed, but no lives were lost. The club was closed for the Easter vacation.

The fire was the seventh and largest at the university within a year.

ORDER FOR ACTION IN HOUSE AND SENATE

Attempt Made to Block Probe of Alleged "Loans" by Banks to Solons

Definite legislative action for an investigation of the charges of corruption and graft in connection with the passage of the street railway legislation by the General Court of 1918 was taken today when President Frank G. Allen of the Senate offered an order calling upon the Rules Committees of the House and Senate, acting concurrently, to "recommend what action should be taken by the General Court with reference to charges of improper conduct by members of the 1918 Legislature."

The Senate adopted the order without debate and it was sent to the House for immediate action. President Allen is chairman of the Senate Rules Committee and Speaker Young of the House is chairman of that body, so that those who are urging a legislative investigation of the whole affair are confident that they have won and that the joint committees will recommend a searching inquiry immediately.

Powerful interests are reported secretly at work to block any attempt to make public the names of any legislators of the 1918 General Court who may have borrowed money from any

Jap Buddhism Gripping Hawaii for Nippon

The fifth installment of the article on the Japanese "invasion" of Hawaii, by Joseph Timmons of the Los Angeles Examiner staff, which is printed today in the Boston American, is another irrefutable revelation of the Pacific-domination aim of Nippon. In sequence with the preceding articles it shows how 98 per cent. of the islands' Japanese inhabitants have remained anti-Christian despite thirty years of missionary effort—thereby insuring support for the Mikado's navy ambition that menaces America.

By JOSEPH TIMMONS

Only about two per cent. of the Japanese population of Hawaii is even nominally Christian. The ninety-eight per cent. is Buddhist or under Buddhist influence.

Most powerful of the eight Buddhist sects in the island is the West Hongwanji, a branch of the Shinshu sect. Its Hosu, or head priest, of the closed trust companies with which to speculate in Boston Elevated stock prior to the passage of the Public Control Bill in 1918.

COX CALLS FOR 'WHOLE TRUTH' IN 'L' PROBE

Bank Commissioner Allen is known to have conferred with Governor Cox relative to the report which the commissioner is preparing in compliance with the request of the Governor's Council for "names, dates and amounts" of notes indicating that members of the 1918 General Court obtained financial assistance from the closed companies to carry on speculative transactions in the "L" securities.

Developments in the situation moved rapidly today. It became assured that an independent investigation by the Legislature into all phases of the inside would be instituted upon by a number of influential members. Although they would not commit themselves both Speaker Young of the House and President Frank G. Allen of the Senate were understood to be heartily in favor of such a move.

TALK OF IMPEACHMENT.

The publication of a letter from Sherman Whipple to Governor Cox of a speed in the sentiment that the demanding a sweeping inquiry into investigation should be extended to all aspects of the matter, and the statements that still are issued by Governor Cox Himself, in which he declared that "if any man has done wrong he must suffer the consequences," served to crystallize sentiment in legislative circles, and it was declared by many of the members that if Bank Commissioner Allen found any of the members of the 1918 session who are still in the Legislature were guilty of malfeasance the Legislature would begin impeachment proceedings immediately.

The likelihood of legal proceedings following the publication of the Bank Commissioner's report also became more apparent.

District Attorney Pelletier announcing that he was prepared to call a special session of the grand jury immediately should the revelation in the commissioner's report warrant such action. If not, he said, he would be glad to have Sherman Whipple and any others who possess information or evidence relative to the charges made by Representative Lomasney and Hays, submit them to the grand jury at the regular April session.

AUTOIST JAILED AFTER CRASH OF STOLEN CAR

Edgar H. Gallant, of No. 121 Salem street, Medford, was arrested early today after a chase by Patrolman Sheehan of the Cambridge police, following an automobile accident near the Cambridge Common.

According to the police, Gallant while driving an automobile, which later turned out to be a stolen car, crashed into a stone post near the Cambridge Common and after climbing out of the wreckage started to run. He was followed by the police officer and taken after a 200 yard chase.

The car is the property of John J. Graham, of Sharon street, Arlington, and was stolen from in front of the Elks Home on Forest street, Medford.

SOUTH BOSTON BOY IS VICTIM OF GAS

Thomas Allen, Jr., 18 years old, of No. 18 Swallow street, South Boston, was found unconscious on his bed early today, when other residents of the house smelled gas and broke into the room. Allen was removed to the Carney Hospital, where it was said his condition is not serious.

1918 Solons Favor Full Probe of Graft Charge

A large majority of members of the State House of Representatives in 1918 declared themselves unreservedly in favor of a thorough investigation of the alleged transactions in Elevated stocks by Legislators during the passage of the Public Control Bill when questioned by representatives of the Boston American.

Their statements follow:

FRED JOHNSON BROWN, Woburn—I personally have never owned nor have traded in Elevated stock. My whole attitude in regard to the Elevated bill was for the preservation of the stocks and bonds owned by the savings banks and small investors who, by State sanction, invested their savings in that railroad. I reported the bill for the committee in the House of Representatives and was successful in carrying it through. While the bill was pending some of the members were asked my advice relative to the possibilities of making a little money and asked if I thought there would be a jump in the market. I told them I would have no advice to give and that they must resume all responsibility. I am willing to stand an investigation.

JOSEPH E. WARNER, Taunton—I know of no stock market transactions affecting the integrity of any members of the House of 1918, when Governor Cox was its Speaker. Four years have now elapsed, but if there be basis for rumors let investigation condemn or exonerate.

J. R. BENTON, Belmont—Public interest demands a bona-fide investigation into rumors about deals in Elevated securities by 1918 legislators.

CHARLES F. ROWLEY, Brookline—Personally, I did not buy or sell directly or indirectly a share of the Boston Elevated stock while a member of the Legislature. While I have understood a few members bought Boston Elevated stock, I believe the rumors are greatly exaggerated. I am convinced that no corruption was practiced, as such members that bought Elevated stock bought it on their own initiative.

REPRESENTATIVE JACOB BITZER, Arlington—Owing to the fact that so much publicity has been given to the rumors, and owing to the Lieutenant-Governor and Mr. Whipple having taken the matter up, I feel and am strongly of the opinion that an investigation should be made to clear the innocent members. I do not believe the stigma should be allowed to rest on the legislators, and think a thorough investigation would be advisable.

REPRESENTATIVE GEORGE LOUIS RICHARDS, Malden—I know of no alleged stock market transactions in Elevated securities by the members of the Legislature of 1918, of which I was a member. If there were, they were so limited as hardly to justify further action than has already been taken.

ARTHUR F. BLANCHARD, Cambridge—I am very glad investigations are going on to ascertain whether there were questionable transactions. Personally I have no knowledge of them.

WILLIAM FLEMING, Somerville—My opinion is to have thorough investigation that the public may know full truth of the matter.

REP. FRED F. GREENWOOD, Everett—I do not know anything about what other members of the Legislature did in the way of buying, but I know I did not purchase any Elevated stock then or since. I resent any investigation. For my part, I voted on the merits of the bill after exhaustive study of the subject.

JOSEPH H. BARRY, Dorchester—It was generally conceded in 1918 that the Elevated should pass to public control. I believe the Legislature as a whole was honest in its dealings. If certain members speculated in Elevated stock it is, of course, discreditable to them. I believe the result would be the same despite their discreditable actions. If they are in the Legislature now they should be retired to private life.

W. F. CRAIG, Lynn—My only knowledge of the stock market transactions in connection with the Elevated legislation of 1918 is what I have recently read in the daily press. The good name of the General Court demands a full and complete investigation of these rumors.

GEORGE J. BATES, Salem—I most heartily endorse any investigation concerning irregularities in the passage of the so-called Boston Elevated bill of 1918.

W. M. MAHONEY, Peabody—I don't know anything about alleged stock market transactions in Boston Elevated securities. In regard to the alleged matters, I think the fullest publicity should be given.

CARLTON W. WINSOR, Gloucester—I know nothing regarding alleged stock market transactions in Boston Elevated securities by members of 1918 Legislature. I had nothing to do with them myself and did not observe any dealings by others. What I do believe is that the service-at-cost legislation was a good and just act, is both unfair and unjust. It was recommended as a solution of our transportation ills at the beginning of the session and looked to be a part of the legislative program of the majority party. I observed no direct graft in the carrying out of this program but the situation was so well in hand by the Legislature's steering forces by merely taking advantage of their prerogative and the condition of the whole legislative system to which they were only the legatees, that the desired end was easily attained.

JAMES E. TOLMAN, Gloucester—Am positively in favor of a thorough investigation of the rumors in regard to alleged activity of the 1918 Legislature relative to the alleged stock" market transaction in Boston Elevated securities. Personally the first I heard of alleged transactions was through the papers of recent date.

MATTHEW A. HIGGINS, Taunton—Being a member of the Legislature of 1918, I did not believe that a public service corporation, no more than a private business concern, should be guaranteed a dividend by the government. As far as this is concerned, a private business concern takes its own chance. Neither do I believe all business should be on an equality.

REPRESENTATIVE WILLIAM J. CONROY, Fall River—I have no personal knowledge of dealings in Elevated stock by members of the Massachusetts Legislature of 1918. In view of the statements and charges made on the floor of the House, I believe there should be an investigation as demanded by Mr. Whipple.

ROBERT T. KENT, Pittsfield—The question has been raised as to the integrity of members of the 1918 legislature. The members of that body are entitled to a complete investigation to clear up any possible question of a doubt, and I for one heartily endorse this proposition.

WILLIAM J. GRANFIELD, Spring-field—I bought no Boston Elevated securities and believe rumor should not be dignified.

ELMER L. BRIGGS, Plymouth—I am an admirer of the fair name of the 1918 Legislature as Mr. Whipple ever was. He says he has no information or belief whether the alleged rumors have basis in fact. That being true, he would do well not to cast suspicion into the minds of less intelligent people regarding the integrity of the Legislature as a whole. Had rumors regarding Mr. Whipple been investigated by a legislative committee, I would think the time better spent than by this demand he has made.

ALVIN E. BLISS, Malden—I know nothing whatsoever regarding the alleged transaction in Boston Elevated securities. I was a member of the Legislature of 1918, and voted for the bill placing the Boston Elevated Railway under State control, because at the time I believed it was the only thing to be done. I do not now, nor have I ever, owned a share of Boston Elevated or any State securities, either directly or otherwise. The matter is in the hands of the Governor and Council, and I hope will be thoroughly investigated.

CHARLES H. MORRILL, Haverhill—Although not personally involved, I believe the matter should be fully investigated.

ALTON E. BELLOWS, North Adams—I have no personal knowledge of any speculation in Boston Elevated stocks in 1918 by members of the Legislature.

GEORGE DENNIS, Sandwich—I saw no signs of any corruption, directly or indirectly, have no interest in the matter and have nothing else to say.

Quality Returns Again to Its Own!

Twins Since 1916 Mrs. Housewife The First Robin No Fly-by-Nights

AN EDITORIAL ON BUYING

1921 WILL be the first "quality" year since 1916. Mark that significant fact!

For the first time in five years the pendulum of consumer demands swings back to those products where quality dominates.

The day of the profiteer with his shoddy goods at high prices has passed into the discard.

Again the merchants' counters are thronged by buyers who will not buy at all unless the quality grades up to the well-known standards of previous years.

For the maker of strictly high quality goods, offering real value at fair prices, 1921 will prove a wonderful year. For the reliable dealer, who returns to his pre-war standards of high value rigidly maintained in every article of his stock, the turnover and net profits will fully justify the care with which he purchases goods, and the energy with which he merchandises them to a waiting public.

For the public is only too eager to re-discover the old values, lost temporarily during the war. Mrs. Housewife and her husband are quite willing to pay for products in which quality is woven throughout, and backed by the guarantee of the reliable maker and the dependable dealer. Though price is an all-important factor, it will be measured by definite standards of quality.

The two are inseparable. The one provides a fair basis for the other.

1921 will be a poor year for the guerrilla manufacturer and the fly-by-night dealer. The consuming public will not soon forget the make-shift goods of wartime and the dealers who sold them at prices in which honest value had no part.

Throughout the land many thousands of dealers whose assurance of value in the advertising columns of daily newspapers was alone necessary in pre-war times to bring a throng of customers are now doing business again on a strictly quality and service basis. Theirs have not been the winnings of the profiteer during war years. They could not obtain goods measuring up to American quality standards and they would not misrepresent values.

1921 will justify their faith and courage and bring them the well-earned prosperity of the reliable merchant and the honest advertiser.

Observe as you linger at the well-stocked counters of the stores today the change in the attitude of the buying public. Necessity is bringing in the shoppers, but satisfaction in the old-time combination of quality and price is evident on every hand.

Good times have returned.

Their presence is indicated by the return of honest values as surely as the first robin symbolizes the unfailing approach of Spring.

INDIAN ALLEGES PLOT TO LINK NAME WITH MRS. STILLMAN

RED 'APOLLO' DEFIES BANKER; HURLS FORGERY CHARGES

that would embarrass Mrs. Stillman and Beauvais if brought to court.

A demand for money on a contract on one of the buildings at the Stillman estate near Grand Anse, on the St. Maurice river, Beauvais said, and which had been held up by Mrs. Stillman, was the basis of the sending of the letter.

It was also, he said, the cause of telegrams having been altered and routed through the National City Bank so that they would come to the attention of Stillman and arouse his suspicions of Mrs. Stillman and her conduct with Beauvais.

Beauvais professed surprise at a picture published in a morning paper recently as false and also repudiated an interview published as coming from him by a news service a week ago.

Beauvais made the startling assertion that he knew Mrs. Leeds personally and had been in her apartment when in New York. He added: "For a time when I was in New York I obtained Mrs. Leeds' telephone number and talked with her over the telephone.

"I knew of the Leeds matter months before Mrs. Stillman learned about it, but I kept quiet. Mrs. Stillman has known about it for some time, but only when it was necessary to her good name did she think of using it."

Beauvais, although a child of the woods, is a graduate of Montreal High Academy, a preparatory school to McGill University, has studied medicine in the primary courses, is a student of osteopathy, music and poetry.

GOSSIPS WAG TONGUES.

The alleged conspiracy to connect his name with that of Mrs. Stillman was set forth by Beauvais who was extremely unwilling to discuss the matter at all, owing to his situation in the case. Briefly, he recounted four days in July, 1917, when Mrs. Stillman went to her Grande Anse estate for a rest.

On July 2 of that year she was feeling ill and asked Beauvais to keep his men working away from her bed chamber while she enjoyed a siesta. She was occupying the bedroom in the southwest corner of the second floor of "Fairmont Manor." Masons had twenty-four men working for him. He ordered them to finish some tasks at the northeast corner of the yet uncompleted mansion and not to disturb the mistress of the estate with undue hammering.

Beauvais added:

"Among these men was old Joe Page, of La Tuque. Later he joined a group of gossiping men and evidently long jokes. He said he had peeked through a keyhole of the bedroom where Mrs. Stillman had been installed and"—here Beauvais hesitated and then added with a shrug:

"And saw the sort of thing that you have heard along the St. Maurice, the kind of lies that do nothing but harm and have no foundation. But here is where Page and those who repeated the story fell down. As I explained the house, I was the only one who knew how it would have been furnished.

WITNESS LIED.

"Page and the others could not and did not know. They lied, owing to a partition for the stairway from the floor, is out of sight of the doorway and could not be seen through the keyhole.

"Later when ten witnesses went to New York to testify for Mr. Stillman, a panic seized those who had learned that the keyhole story could be disproved.

"So what did they do but modify the story to make it appear that certain persons had climbed a ladder and viewed things through a second story window. This was also a lie, for there was no ladder being used at the time that day and no repair work going on, on the roof, for the men had been ordered not to hammer while Mrs. Stillman was resting."

Beauvais expressed utter unbelief that Stillman has any letter or documents in his possession that would seem to indicate that Mrs. Stillman had "confessed or asked forgiveness," he added.

"No woman would write such a letter when nothing of the kind ever occurred. It is only another bit of guesswork founded on gossip which Mr. Stillman is the victim of, in that he believes or appears to believe it."

DESCRIBES CONSPIRACY.

Beauvais gave indication that he is thoroughly familiar with every angle of the case, although it was with great difficulty that he was drawn out. When it was suggested that it had been printed that Mrs. Leeds was a policeman's daughter, he smiled and corrected:

"No, a plumber's daughter. She got two new automobiles last Winter."

Beauvais' manner is frank and open. He makes it clear that he cannot speak upon certain questions on account of the indelicate nature of the charges. But he described one phase of the conspiracy which he charges has been concocted as follows:

"My middle name is my Indian name. It begins with the letter 'K.' I need not tell you what it is, except that it is translated into English as 'Deer Wood.' It has been my pet name for years to sign my telegrams to an employer by my Indian name, as it is today when I signed 'Deer Wood' to my telegrams to my employer, Mrs. Stillman.

"In their haste to fix anything on me at all, I know that attorneys for Mr. Stillman have seized upon 'Deer Wood' as a term of affection and endearment."

It was here that Beauvais outlined his charge of tampering with his letters. He named the man he claims to have uncovered and declared that that man approached Mr. Stillman in the first place with gossip and an offer to give the alleged facts concerning Mrs. Stillman and her guide.

BLACKMAIL THREAT.

Beauvais added:

"This man," referring to the party he alleges stirred up the gossip, "was mad at me because I had sued him for $2,000 for a contract on a building which I was to superintend. He first wrote to us jointly about as follows:

"'I lost a lot of money on the contract. You can well afford to reimburse me for the money.' The man

"We took this matter up with a Montreal attorney, who advised us not to pay the money. The main question then became enraged and in 1919 wrote the following letter, which I am ready to produce and which my attorney said was blackmail:

"'Dear Mrs. Stillman and Fred Beauvais—If you want to go to court I have a lot of stuff that will make it bad for you both.

"This inference was plain, coming on the heels of the gossip and lies started by the St. Maurice.

"This man demanded $2,000, and failing to get it threatened to do us all the damage possible.

NEARLY CAME TO BLOWS.

"It was while I was at Newport for two weeks in August, 1919, that I obtained positive proof of the forgery. Mrs. Stillman received a wire that had, as usual, been routed through the National Bank. It, for a change, place down the river and was purportedly signed by myself. It read:

"'Have left for Montreal. Completed. Pay $2,000 to (naming the man referred to above). With love.

(Signed) "'FRED.'"

"This set me to thinking. By some insurance agent I was down the river had figured that I was at Grand Anse and not in Newport, hence that note. As I said before, I think so."

His views said that he returned to the Northwoods district and met the man he accuses of sending the telegram received at Newport. He found that the two nearly had come to blows over the matter.

Beauvais took occasion to relate how he had been followed by detectives while in the woods part of two years. In this respect he said:

"One of them was a man named Brachen. He was on my trail nearly all last Summer. That was at Lake Placid. Brachen posed as a representative of a European news service. He hired me as his guide. The moment he began on me, I sensed his game.

"First he would show me certain love letters supposed to have been written by a young lady to himself, in the hope of arousing me into showing letters that he seemed to be sure I had received from a certain person, but which I never did receive.

WILL SETTLE SCORES.

"Then there was a woman detective, who thought her portion would be unsuspected by me. I led her a merry chase. It would take too long to enumerate all the detective experiences I had. They looked funny in the woods."

When asked if he knew of anyone having received money for going to New York to testify for the banker he charged flatly:

"I know that Joe Page received a present of $1,000 before he entered one of La Tuque. He was outfitted with fine sixth traveling bags and other equipment. La Pendue also bought a new automobile last year."

Beauvais summed up his situation as follows:

"My connection with the Stillman family has not been a personal one. Of course, I have been and am very fond of 'Bud,' Mrs. Stillman's son, who is now seventeen. I taught him holds in wrestling and the ways of the woods."

Beauvais declared, when asked why he had maintained a studied silence so long, said:

"The people who have gossiped about me and who have mailed me and forged and altered telegrams have me to deal with yet, I am merely waiting until I am ready to talk and act. Then I will have scores to settle along the St. Maurice."

Girl Jailed for Theft of Easter Bonnet

Worcester, March 25.—Two months in the House of Correction for stealing an Easter bonnet was the sentence given Isabel Kasper, twenty-one years old, of No. 14 Seymour street by Judge Samuel Utley in Central District Court. She appealed.

An appeal for clemency because the girl had no police record and was not a professional shoplifter brought the remark from the bench that it was worse to bring suspicion on an innocent person. The Kasper girl gave the name of another girl when arrested the first time for the theft.

When the case was first called for trial she failed to appear. Later she was arrested in Leicester through the activities of the girl whose name she falsely gave.

Curtis Knocked Out by Fish Balls He Ate

Fishballs knocked out Police Commissioner Edwin U. Curtis, according to his secretary, James H. Devlin.

Dr. Henry F. Hewes, the commissioner's physician, says Mr. Curtis quit work last Saturday because he was "terribly tired." He says Commissioner Curtis will be back at his desk next Monday. "I advised him to take a few days' rest," he added.

The doctor denied that Mr. Curtis collapsed in his office and was assisted home by two police inspectors. Curtis went home from his office in a police automobile as usual," he said.

Secretary Devlin said, "The commissioner did not feel well before he went home. He believed his feeling was due to some fish balls he had eaten. He did not collapse. He walked out of the office unassisted to the automobile."

STATE ENDS ITS EVIDENCE IN RAMEY TRIAL

Nurse Tells of Interview at Greenhouse With Youth Charged With Assault

The Commonwealth rested its case today in the trial of Frank S. Ramey, charged with assault with intent to kill Mildred Wanamaker of Wakefield, now being heard in the East Cambridge Superior Criminal Court.

The defence immediately began the presentation of its evidence, with the prospect of an early conclusion of the night trial.

The chief witness for the prosecution today was Miss Margaret H. English of Malden, a visiting nurse, who was active in the investigation following the attack on Miss Wanamaker. Miss English testified that about 8 o'clock on the day in the assault, while driving through Wakefield in her automobile, she picked up Officer W. J. Preston and carried him to the McCarthy greenhouses, where Ramey was employed.

She said Officer Preston questioned Ramey as to the hour he came to work, and Ramey replied "Seven o'clock." In response to another question, Ramey said the other employes arrived at 8 o'clock.

RELATES CONVERSATION

Asked if he had been on Montrose avenue, Ramey, according to the witness, replied: "No, and I can prove I wasn't." Up to this time Miss English said the assault had not been mentioned.

Later in the same day Miss English said she returned with Preston and Policeman Arthur Whitefield police station, at which time they asked for and secured Ramey's lunch box.

The witness was shown a piece of woman's underclothing, found near the scene of the assault. Part of it, according to the police, Ramey used to clean his motorcycle.

Both the English said the garment had been there several days previous to the assault, according to what a little girl had told her. This same girl, Katie Kasanrath, had also found a monkey wrench, which Miss English declared was not visible the day before the crime, as she had stopped her automobile at that spot.

ATTORNEY APPLAUDS TESTIMONY.

Miss English's testimony regarding the undergarment was greeted with applause by Attorney Kiernan of counsel for the defence.

Katie Kasanrath, the next witness, declared that the underclothing exhibited in court was not the same article that she had seen in the woods a few previous to the assault.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Meldrum of Montrose, testifying to the same effect in each case, said they had gone to the scene of the assault the day following. They, with Officer Leary, they noticed scraps of paper, on one of which was part of a name. They gathered up the scraps and put them together, they testified. They then found the scrap bore the words: "Mildred Wanamaker, Montrose avenue, Wakefield, Mass."

The evidence formed these bits of paper over to the police, they said.

BALTIMORE WILL HOLD PRIMACY OF CHURCH

Cardinal Gibbons' Death Not to Result in Shift of Authority. Funeral Thursday

By International News Service.

Baltimore, Md., March 25.—With a definite date set for the funeral of Cardinal Gibbons, preparations were under way today for the reception of the distinguished clergy and laymen who will be present at the last rites. The body of the late cardinal will rest in the archiepiscopal residence until the night before the funeral.

It will then be removed to the Cathedral, where it will lie in state until the time of the funeral services Thursday. The body will then be placed in a niche in the crypt under the high altar, where it will remain as long as the Cathedral stands.

One of the questions settled following the death of Cardinal Gibbons is that Baltimore will remain the primatial see of the Catholic church in the United States, it was announced today. It was stated that there will be a filling of an assistantship since the choice of a successor to the archbishopric here involved no question of authority or rank.

This means that Baltimore will remain the seat of an archbishopric and a successor to the cardinal will be named by Pope Benedict as soon as he receives the pallium of archbishop or archbishops of the United States. It is believed, however, that the successor to Cardinal Gibbons as archbishop of Baltimore is not likely to be elevated to the cardinalate in the very near future.

Possibly within the next six months a new archbishop will have been selected to take over the reins laid down by Cardinal Gibbons with his death yesterday.

The affairs of this archdiocese in the meantime will be conducted by this administrator. This administrator will be appointed at a special meeting of the consulters of the archdiocese to be held at the late cardinal's residence late today.

Cardinal's Last Act One of Meekness

Baltimore, March 25.—Cardinal Gibbons' last act outside his own home was carried out meekness. It became known today the last visit to an institution made by the prelate was on Saturday to the home of the Little Sisters of the Poor.

The last recorded words of Cardinal Gibbons were:

"How different an end from Cardinal Manning's!"

The sorrowing household was reminded that Cardinal Manning's last days were saddened by the forgetfulness of some of those upon whom he counted to be his most loyal and unfaltering companions.

COMB BOSTON IN PROBE OF ARMY 'MURDER PLOT'

U. S. Investigators of Cronkhite Shooting Seek to Prove Rosenbluth's Guilt

New York, March 25.—Investigators have been dispatched to Boston, Washington, Atlanta and Seattle by the Department of Justice in their nation-wide search for evidence to establish the guilt of former Captain Rudolph Rosenbluth, charged with the murder of Major Alexander P. Cronkhite, at Camp Lewis, Tacoma, Washington, in 1918.

Thomas Beasley, acting superintendent of the New York district of the Department of Justice, would not say who agents are covering Boston, but it is believed that persons connected with Sergeant Roland H. Pulsifer of Central Falls, R. I., who was arrested last Thursday in Providence, and who pleaded guilty of participating in the slaughter when the gun he held went off in the direction of Cronkhite at the rifle practice, are being investigated. Whether information given by Pulsifer led to the arrest of Rosenbluth could not be learned.

More arrests will be made in a few days, Heddy predicted.

LOST LYNN GIRL AND MOTHER UNITED

Mrs. Werner Sees Emily in Philadelphia Court First Time in Four Years

Philadelphia, March 25.—A touching scene was enacted in the Court of Domestic Relations here when Mrs. Emily Werner, of No. 5140 Oxford street, Lynn, was united for a few hours with her nine-year-old daughter Emily, after a separation of four years. The daughter was awarded to her father when he and the mother separated. He promptly took the girl away a month ago.

Meanwhile Mrs. Werner had been working in an Americanization restaurant to save money with which to search for her daughter. Four years ago a report that Emily was in a middle Western city started her on a trip there. Several days' investigation proved the report to be untrue and the mother, almost penniless, returned to Lynn.

The next two years brought little hope for Mrs. Werner, with no word from her husband, and did not know whether Emily was dead or alive. A few days ago word of his suicide in the Boston & Maine car Emily had been for some time prior to that was received over the heads of Lankenau Orphanage, which placed the girl in the hospital, Philadelphia. When this information was learned by Mrs. Werner she left for Philadelphia the following day.

Mrs. Werner, her friends say, will remain in Philadelphia until she regains custody of the child, after which she will return to Lynn where she will make a home for herself and the child.

SOCIETY FOLK IN DIVORCE COURT ACTION

Gloucester, March 25.—Manchester-by-the-Sea was amazed today over the filing of a divorce suit here by Edward P. Coady, charging his wife, formerly Charlotte M. Torr, with unfaithfulness. Last fall Coady, who is the sales manager for a shoe manufacturing house, filed suit against Ralph Henry Barbour, the author, for $50,000, alleging incendiary.

The Coadys are prominent in society here, Mrs. Coady having been an active part in amateur theatrical productions. Both parties in the Coady suit are well known in their home here, and the Barbour mansion, "Journey's End," is also closed.

NURSE PREVENTS CAR AND FIRE TRUCK CRASH

Portland, Me., March 25.—The presence of mind of Miss Frances Cowan, a public health nurse, prevented a collision between a fire truck and a motor car, when she jumped into the middle of the street and halted a street car and other traffic while a fire truck dashed from an intersecting street across the car tracks. The motorist in the motor driven truck would have torn through the trolley car, which contained ten passengers.

Drink MOXIE TRADE MARK REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

It's his eyes. They follow you everywhere.

The clear, friendly eyes of the Moxie Boy have made him the most famous advertising figure in the world.

College professors and scientists have lectured about him. Technical magazines, books of wonder, scientific works in many fands and languages have reproduced pictures of the Moxie Boy. He is famous as a good compelling advertisement and because he illustrates a peculiar phenomenon.

Anywhere within sight of the Moxie Boy and you will find that his eyes gaze directly into yours in a straightforward, honest-and-true manner that is as clean, sincere, and wholesome as the beverage he recommends.

Books on modern advertising, business colleges, and schools of advertising use the Moxie Boy to illustrate his eye-compelling power. It is based upon a fundamental principle of optical science and draughtsmanship.

The Moxie Boy has played many roles, apart from his duties as an advertising figure. To the proprietor of a fruit stand he is the "Moxie Detective." Many of them have reported that when one of the lifelike color cut-outs of the Moxie Boy stands guard, small boys do not help themselves to fruit, candy and peanuts.

In Maine you will find the Moxie Boy perched by the roadside to tell the traveler that it is to many miles to Moxie Lake, and in Tennessee he will be found directing people to the little town of Moxie.

Country clubs have used his forceful figure here and there about the golf links to admonish players to "Please Replace the Turf."

Many humorous mistakes have been made because of the Moxie Boy's illusion of flesh-and-blood reality. This is especially true of the life-size color cut-outs which are familiar sights to everyone.

Ferry guards have run after Moxie Automobiles to collect another fare for the Moxie Boy painted on the car beside the driver's seat.

Hundreds of hurried customers have mistaken him for a clerk and told him their wants.

A prominent dealer once asked the Moxie Company to pay $50 for a plate glass window because some ill-humored person had thrown a stone at the Moxie Boy and the face of the figure was broken. The stone-thrower had thought the clerks were making fun of him.

The proprietor of a large wholesale and retail establishment—a very stern man—came from the bright sun of the street into the dimness of the store, which was about to get dark, and sitting a clerk sitting on the counter, he rushed up to him and began a vociferous "calldown." It was the Moxie Boy cut-out and the incident cured the boss' grouch for the day.

People have used the Moxie Boy cut-outs for countless purposes all the way from the questionable practice of advertising some totally different product to petting him near a house window to discourage tramps by acting the part of the man of the family.

And always he has gone on in his clean, wholesome, sincere way advising his millions of friends everywhere to drink Moxie, the clean, wholesome, refreshing beverage.

in Japan, is Otani Kozui, Lord Abbot, who married a sister of the Mikado.

Rev. Y. Imamura, bishop of the Hongwanji mission, is the most powerful Buddhist in the islands. He presides over a splendid $100,000 temple in Honolulu, and affiliated with his temples throughout the islands are 75,000 Japanese.

Imamura personally told me that his appointment and authority comes directly from Hosu Otani, at Kyoto. He said also that this appointment was approved by the bureau of religion of the Department of the Interior, at Tokio, through which bureau his work is controlled.

Hence there exist between Buddhist activities in the islands and Buddhist Japan three separate connections—the first, with the Imperial Household; second, with the Buddhist hierarchy, and third, with the civil government.

Buddhism has a firm grip on the Japanese of Hawaii. By the testimony of Japanese Christians it is actively tightening that grip in a campaign before which the Christians stand appalled. It is notoriously an effective agency of Japan in helping to make Japanese born in the islands loyal subjects of the empire.

Thirty years of faithful labor in this promising vineyard of the Lord had till last Spring produced 2,500 Christians. Unpodly whites say many of these are Christians for revenue only, since better jobs are to be had by Japanese who say they are Christians. A number of these scoffers told me they knew Japanese "Christians" who had little shrines in their houses and regularly went to the temples to worship.

But let that go; count the 2,500 as genuine Christians. That leaves 167,500 who are not, and these are either Buddhist or under Buddhist influence. And to be a Japanese Buddhist means to be a Shintoist, almost invariably, for not to revere the Emperor as a descendant in direct line of the Sun-God is to be other than a loyal Japanese. The count of 2,500 is a pitiable showing for the churches of Christ, especially as during the strike last Spring several hundred of these drifted back to the temples, in consequence of the solidarity of Japanese opposition to everything American in that frank period.

Supplementing this is the fact that of some 126,000 Japanese in mainland America, but 4,000 are members of Christian churches.

Rev. Dr. Sidney Gulick, who would have us admit annually 10 per cent. of the number of Japanese resident within our borders, is the organizer of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, the direct purpose of which is to show the East the error of California's way. Affiliated are twenty Protestant sects, with 17,000,000 members.

These millions of church people would do well to contemplate the results of Japanese immigration, held in check as it has been by California's opposition. It has firmly entrenched Buddhism in America. There are today many more Japanese Buddhists in America than there are Christians in Japan. If Gulick and his zealous band of devotees had their way, Christianity on the Pacific coast would be overwhelmed beneath a flood of Buddhism. Hawaii's experience proves it. Gulick's organization is actually, without knowing it, working in aid of the extension of Japanese Buddhism.

Rev. T. Okamura is the rock foundation of the Japanese Christians in Hawaii. He is a sturdy, faithful soul. He is detested by all non-Christian Japanese, who vilify him as a traitor to his people and his country. Even Soga, the Christian editor of Nippo Jiji of Honolulu, frequently abuses Okamura bitterly in his editorials.

Okamura in an interview with me complained of the intense activity of the Buddhists. He said they were adapting the Christian agencies for extension, and organizing Sunday School, Young Men's Buddhist Associations, women's organizations, girls' classes. They are building temples and shrines everywhere. Six large Buddhist temples and five Shinto shrines in Honolulu alone, besides many small temples and shrines, an equal number in Hilo, temples and shrines on every one of the forty-five sugar plantations, others in fishing villages, many in the smaller cities and towns—it is a formidable showing. No one could estimate the total for me.

"No Japanese Buddhist priest can teach American ideals or exert an influence towards Americanization of Hawaiian-born Japanese," Okamura said. "To do so would be to work for the destruction of Buddhism. Ishikawa, editor of Yorodzu of Tokio, who spent three or four weeks here several months ago after his visit to California, agreed with me that Buddhism is the principal cause of friction here."

"Can or will Japan curb Buddhist activities here or on the mainland?" I asked Okamura.

"No, it cannot," he replied hopelessly, but added, brightening, "Buddhism in the islands will last but fifteen or twenty years. It is doomed. What I fear is that Hawaiian-born Japanese will be neither Buddhist nor Christian."

Bishop Imamura smiled brightly when I told him Okamura said Buddhism was doomed in the islands.

"If it consoles Okamura, let him think so; I have no fear of the doom he pronounces," Imamura said. Then he added: "I agree there is danger of the younger Japanese being neither one nor the other. I would rather they became Christians than non-religious."

JAPAN PASSES BIG NAVY BUDGET

Diet Regards With Suspicion Plans for U. S. Fleets Entering Pacific

Tokio, March 25. — Disarmament will have no place in Japan's program for the coming year.

Big navy advocates have triumphed in the Diet and that body today passed the budget which carries total appropriations of 1,562,000,000 yen ($721,000,000), of which 35 per cent. will be devoted to Japan's navy. The budget now awaits the signature of the Emperor. The House of Peers is passing it by a standing vote.

In the House of Peers during the final discussion of the budget sensational references were made to reported plans for American naval concentration in the Pacific. Naval Minister Kato was interrogated by Baron Sakamoto regarding reports that the Atlantic and Pacific fleets of the United States were to be unified in Pacific Waters.

"Japan has only unofficial information on this subject," Minister Kato replied. "But even so, the question is one of grave diplomatic import and, as such, a discussion in the Diet is impossible."

A note of alarm over these reports was also sounded in the press today, comment being devoted chiefly to this subject.

"An exhibition of Republican arms amounting to a threat towards the Pacific," was the characterization of one of the papers in discussing the reports.

Although the ministry has successfully withstood all attacks during the present session of the Diet, which comes to a close Saturday, it is generally predicted here that the cabinet will fall next Summer.

Big navy advocates are fighting to maintain supremacy and this issue has taken precedence over all others. Baron Kato is a strong possibility for the next premier, although Count Yamamoto, a strong advocate of naval enlargement, is also suggested as a possibility.

INVENTOR'S WIDOW ASKS LARGER SHARE IN ESTATE

Worcester, March 25. — Ella M. Aitchison of Worcester, widow of George T. Aitchison, inventor of the car sprinkler, has started proceedings in the Supreme Court to set aside a postnuptial agreement between her and her late husband, by which she agreed to take only $7,500 from his estate. The estate is worth about $65,000. Mrs. Aitchison declares the agreement was secured by fraud on the part of her husband and that he was unduly influenced by Eleanor Maynard of Westboro, his housekeeper for many years. Under the present will the Westboro woman would receive $14,000.

Hotel Guests Must Give Street Addresses

New Bedford, March 25.—The fine distinction between the meanings of "residence" and "home" was the principle involved in the trial in District Court of Eugene H. Vien, millionaire proprietor of several hotels, accused of renting rooms to transients without requiring them to write their addresses in the register.

His attorneys argued that the guests' "residences" were the cities where they lived and that nothing further needed to be set forth in the record.

Special Judge James P. Doran, however, held with the policemen that the street addresses were necessary, and finding Vien guilty, fined him $100. Vien appealed.

NORTH ADAMS SHOE FACTORY SHUTS DOWN

North Adams, March 25.—Owing to present business conditions the local factory of the George E. The factory has been working on a two-thirds capacity for some time past.

Fears U. S. Girls May Vamp Italy's Prince

Paris, March 25.—The efforts of diplomats to send the Crown Prince Humbert of Italy on a mission to Washington, accompanied by General Diaz, has received a set-back at Rome. It is revealed that Queen Eleanor is firmly opposed to the trip on account of the prince's youth and his impressionable and affectionate nature.

In court circles it is an open secret that the Queen fears a repetition of the difficulties resulting from the love match of the Duke of the Abruzzi and Miss Elkins, which nearly resulted in marriage, but which was frustrated at the last moment by the efforts of the royal family.

VERDICT FOR DAVIS IN $500,000 LOVE SUIT

Washington, March 25.—A verdict in favor of the defendant was returned in the $500,000 alienation of affections suit of David R. Sullivan against John T. Davis, West Virginia, multi-millionaire. Davis is a son of the late Henry Gassaway Davis, former Democratic candidate for Vice-President, and an uncle of Senator Davis Elkins.

The evidence on which Sullivan based his suit was secured in a raid on a local hotel at which Davis was found with Mrs. Sullivan by the plaintiff and his counsel, Norman S. Bowles. Davis contended during the trial that he had been lured to the hotel by Mrs. Sullivan and there drugged by her.

Northcliffe Is for Truce in Ireland

London, March 25.—The futility of attempting to rule Ireland with force is denounced by Lord Northcliffe in an article entitled "In the Nineteenth Century and After."

Lord Northcliffe says that this obsolete method of governing has gained Great Britain world-wide condemnation.

"No settlement can be reached," he states, "except through a truce which hourly becomes apparently more difficult. The government is too pliant to Ulster dictation and is also attempting a wholly unsatisfactory compromise. On the question of finance, it cannot seriously be said that to grant fiscal autonomy to Ireland would menace England's economic position."

SIR WILFRED PEEK KILLED IN AMBUSH

No More Silk Pajamas On Weymouth Beach

Silk pajamas, or the upper half of a man's bathing suit, are not considered satisfactory raiment for Weymouth's Summer residents.

To avoid a repetition of the occurrences which startled the town last season, three new special policemen have been added to the police department.

"Midnight frolickings" in Whitman's pond are taboo and those who bathe during the day must wear the complete bathing outfit. Yes, Weymouth's Summer residents were actually accused of entering the water without proper attires. Mrs. William Mace, proprietor of the Lake View Park hotel, entered protest with the police, stating that the girls went bathing at night time, arrayed in "silk pajamas and the upper halves of men's bathing suits."

DRAWN SHADES IN AUTO CAUSE ARREST OF 4

Quincy Police Detain Party of Boston Men, Two of Whom Carried Guns

Four Boston men, arrested on suspicion in an automobile, the curtains of which had been drawn, were arraigned today in the Quincy court. Two of them were charged with carrying concealed weapons, the police finding revolvers on their persons.

They gave the following names and addresses:

Maddalora Savero, aged 45, No. 201 Salem street; Luigi Di Padaro, aged 23, No. 3 Snow Hill street; Salvatores Dispano, aged 44, No. 64 Prince street; Joseph Morello, aged 45, No. 18 Henchman street. Savero and Di Padaro were charged with carrying the weapons.

The police charge the men pulled down the curtains of the auto in which they were riding as though to avoid being recognized by a traffic officer, who they were passing at School and Hancock streets, Quincy. The officer notified headquarters and police search discovered the machine pulled up to the curbing on Faxnell street, Quincy.

The chauffeur of the car said the men engaged him at Prince and Salem streets, Boston, and ordered him to drive to Quincy.

The balloon was occupied by five men, in charge of Chief Quartermaster C. B. Wilkinson.

The Pensacola station has swept the gulf with radio requests that the balloon be picked up. All passing ships are asked to watch for it.

It is believed the men are aboard some vessel not equipped with radio which has picked them up. This has been done in the past with disabled planes from Pensacola marooned in the gulf some forty miles off shore.

The balloon left the Pensacola station Tuesday night in a brisk northwesterly breeze on a flight scheduled to continue over night.

65 P.C. of Auto Victims Are Children

Automobile accidents in Massachusetts during the first three months of 1921 resulted in eighty deaths, against forty-nine during the corresponding period of 1920. Most of the victims were pedestrains and 65 per cent of them were children under twelve years of age.

Frank A. Goodwin, registrar of motor vehicles of the Massachusetts Highway Commission, has compiled the following "Safety-graphs:"

When caution becomes a habit accidents will be few.

Be careful today — tomorrow may be too late.

The wife of the careless man is almost a widow.

Presence of mind leads to safety.

Practice safety and you will have the laugh on the doctor.

Careless chances usually takes one too many.

Never be in too big a hurry to be careful.

A bed at home is worth two at a hospital.

Accidents do not just happen. They are caused.

An ounce of forethought is worth several pounds of substantial regret.

It is better to take pains in preventing accidents than to suffer pains as the result of them.

Safety first—a conspiracy to rob the doctor, hospital and undertaker.

REPORT BILL TO LICENSE COAL DEALERS OF STATE

All coal dealers in Massachusetts will have to obtain licenses to do business, if a bill the Committee on Mercantile Affairs has decided to report to the Legislature becomes law. No effort is being made to regulate the quality of coal sold, though many bills for that purpose were introduced. It was thought by the committee that such a law would prevent coal being shipped here in time of shortage.

DEALERS WIN AWARDS FOR DISPLAYS

Monthly Prizes Given to Druggists and Grocers in Metropolitan Boston

The awards for the monthly prize window display contest, which is conducted every month by the Merchandising Service Department of the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser, have just been announced.

These prizes are given every month to three druggists and also to three grocers in Metropolitan Boston for the best window displays featuring products that are advertised in either of these two papers.

The Cole Drug Company, Massachusetts avenue, Boston, won first prize with a Palmolive Soap display. Second prize was taken by W. F. Furbush, No. 1153 Broadway, Somerville, and third prize is given to Mrs. L. R. Waters, Harvard avenue, Allston.

In the contest among grocers the Worcester Public Market of Worcester captured first prize with a very beautiful window display of Heinz Oven-Baked Beans. McCloskey & Harty, No. 1245 Cambridge street, Cambridge, won second prize with a Chase & Sanborn Tea and Coffee window. Third prize went to T. F. McMahon of Washington street, Brookline.

Every month many Boston grocers and druggists compete for these prizes and every month sees lively competition. The prize winners are always announced in the Grocer Link and the Druggist Link, the two trade papers which are published every month by the Merchandising Service Department of the Boston American and Boston Sunday Advertiser.

New Town Lights Cause Frenzy of Hen Laying

Oneco, Ct., March 25.—A frenzy of laying on the part of local hens, their schemes of things upset by the recent installation of a new electric street lighting system, has forced down the price of eggs to a known figure, while storekeepers indulge in sinful moaning.

HOPE OF PARDON GROWS AFTER DEBS' VISIT

Daugherty Expected to Make Favorable Recommendation. Prisoner Returns to Atlanta

By International News Service

Washington, March 25.—Eugene V. Debs is returning today to his cell in the federal prison at Atlanta after his brief taste of freedom—the first he has enjoyed since his conviction under the espionage act three years ago.

While Attorney-General Daugherty was cautious about giving any indication as to the results of the noted prisoner's unprecedented trip to Washington, alone and unarmed, it can be said authoritatively that Debs has immeasurably increased his chances for executive clemency, though it is understood he made no actual appeal for clemency.

The prisoner came to Washington at the attorney-general's invitation. replied to questions made a quiet and forceful presentation of his views and then went as quietly and unostentatiously as he came back to the train that was to return him to prison.

One result of his visit was apparent today. Attorney-General Daugherty will speed up the review of the records in the case. It is believed he will be able to communicate his recommendations to the White House within a few days and that these recommendations will not be unfavorable.

Some of Debs' friends are frankly hopeful of a Full-Presidential pardon, which will restore the noted Socialist to full freedom immediately. Others, while believing Debs' release recommendation is more likely to be for a commutation of sentence in the near future, Debs still has seven years to serve under his original ten-year sentence.

The physical appearance of the prisoner made a marked impression on the attorney-general and those few others who saw him during his brief stay here. Naturally thin and cadaverous, the three years which he has spent in Atlanta has enhanced this appearance and added the pallor that comes from confinement between four walls.

The most marked thing about his appearance, however, was the indication of extreme nervousness. It had been stated that Debs cannot live to serve out his ten years. Whether or not this is true, Debs' physical condition will figure largely in the final consideration of his case.

A City of the Dead

A Boston man has discovered a new Liquid Poison Gas which would kill the entire population of the city within a few hours. The city would be left intact. Read the great illustrated story of this wholesale death dealer in next Sunday's Boston Sunday Advertiser.

SAGE TEA TURNS GRAY HAIR DARK

It's Grandmother's recipe to bring color, lustre and youthfulness to hair when faded, streaked or gray.

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray or streaked, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the mixture; you can get this famous old recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients at a small cost, all ready for use. It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre of your hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth" Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire dark hair and a youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.—Advertisement.

Cocoanut Oil Makes A Splendid Shampoo

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls of Mulsified will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is never in a fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.—Advertisement.

HOAX SEEN IN MILLIONAIRE'S 'DEATH' AT SEA

Thor Dahl, Reported a Suicide on Norwegian Ship, Wanted as Bribery Witness

By International News Service.

New York, March 25.—The circumstantial story brought to port by the Norwegian-American liner Bergensfjord that one of the passengers, Thor Dahl, reputed to be a Norwegian multi-millionaire, had either jumped overboard or been swept off the ship during a terrific storm at sea, has not satisfied the New York District Attorney's office, it became known today.

Officials believe the story a hoax and have detectives searching for Dahl, who they believe, came ashore disguised as a seaman. Dahl is wanted as a witness in connection with the trials of police officers indicted a year ago for bribery.

He is said to have been a visitor here before, at which time officials declare he was a figure in the white light section.

Schooner Floated

Woods Hole, March 25.—The schooner William Booth, which ran aground on Great Ledge in a fog, has been floated.

Teething for Third Time in Life

Augusta, Me., March 25.—William J. Crane of South China, twelve miles from here, who is ninety-seven years of age, is "teething" for the third time in his life. Healthy, white teeth are gradually working up through the gums, with four teeth already in sight.

Regarding the event, Mr. Crane said today: "I have always been careful what I have put in my mouth." Despite his ninety-seven years, Mr. Crane is active and healthy.

DENOUNCE PLAN TO RAILROAD 'LIGHT' LAWS

Harvard Liberal Club Favors Complete Inquiry Into Stock Situation

Denouncing the attempt of the organized gas and electric corporations to "railroad" their stock manipulation schemes through the Legislature, the Harvard Liberal Club today urged the defeat of the Burdett bills and the adoption of the Shattuck order for a complete investigation of the entire situation.

In a letter to Speaker Young, the Harvard Club said that these schemes involve a radical departure from the policy which the state establishes for the protection of the consumers and that they may lead in the future to "unnecessary and unfair increases of rates."

The club especially condemned the effort being made to attach the emergency preamble to these measures and thus deprive the people of their right to use the initiative and Referendum.

Polish Troops Sack Town

London, March 25.—A Central News dispatch from Kovno reports that Gen. Zeligowski's troops have crossed the demarcation line and sacked Tchirvinta in the neutral zone. The Lithuanian mission which was sent to investigate were arrested and shot by the Polish artillery.

Wireless Clock, Last Word in Time Pieces

New York, March 25.—The invention of a wireless clock by T. S. Casner of Plainfield, N. J., is the fifth remarkable step forward in the world's history of timepieces.

Discarding the sun dial which was worthless at night, the Egyptians invented a time wheel turned by water. In the early ages all clocks were operated by weights. Then came the clock operated by a mainspring, either with or without a pendulum. Comparatively recently the electrical clock was invented, and last of all the New Jersey man has perfected an automatic, self-winding device that is corrected daily by the rapid wireless impulse sent out from Washington for that purpose.

TURKS RETREATING, SAYS GREEK REPORT

London, March 25.—The Greek advance against the Turkish Nationalists on the Smyrna front continues successfully, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Athens today. It quoted the Greek War Office as announcing: "We are making victorious advances in the section of Ushak and Brousa in our offensive, which began yesterday. The Turks are retreating in disorder."

WORKERS ASK ROAD TO RESTORE CAR SERVICE

Former employes of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway in the Gloucester district, where service was suspended a year ago, have petitioned the trustees for the restoration of service and as an expression of good will have promised to accept the 20 per cent wage reduction which the company has announced to become effective May 2. The men declare that there is a strong sentiment for the resumption of trolley service in that district and that transportation has been far from satisfactory.

ONE MORE CHANCE TO ENTER $5,000 TITLE TEST

Have YOU entered the $5,000 Movie Play Title Test?

Do you want to do so? The high awards are $1,000, $750, $500, $400, $300, $200, $150, $100 and $50, and there are two hundred and ten lesser amounts. All to be paid in cash!

Today is the Twenty-seventh Day of the Sixty-Day Test, but there remains ONE opportunity to step in on even terms with those who have been in from the beginning.

GET THE BOSTON SUNDAY ADVERTISER AND NEXT MONDAY'S BOSTON AMERICAN AND YOU WILL HAVE THE FIRST THIRTY TEST PICTURES AND BE READY TO TAKE UP THE WORK ON TUESDAY IN REGULAR ORDER.

This, remember, is the Last Call!

You come into the Title Test with the Sunday Advertiser and next Monday's Boston American or you do not come in at all. The publisher does not sell back numbers of this newspaper. No Book of Titles or Book of Test Pictures will be on sale. This is a Test for readers of the Boston American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

There will be in all sixty Test Pictures. Half of them will be in your hands with the Sunday Advertiser and Monday's Boston American. After that the pictures from 30, the No. 60 will be found on week-days in the Boston American and on Sundays in the Boston Sunday Advertiser. One every day and no more than one.

Each and every Test Picture is drawn to suggest and to illustrate the TITLE of a motion picture play which has been produced in the United States. They have not intended to represent SCENES in motion picture plays, or to have any other connection with picture plays than illustrating their TITLES.

Participants in the Test, indeed, might well forget all about the movies so far as the present Test is concerned.

Every day a List of Titles is printed not far from the Test Picture; in the daily paper immediately below it. This list ALWAYS contains the correct title of the day's Test Picture. To be sure, it contains other titles—some of them ridiculously far from anything in the picture—but there is in this list ALWAYS one title which fits the Test Picture. BETTER THAN ANY OTHER TITLE IN THE LIST.

Every person taking part in this Test should read the Rules of the Test. They are printed today on the Picture Page, where you also will find today's Test Picture. No. 37. One of the rules is that Titles are NOT to be sent in before the end of the Test. There are others quite as important. Each participant should send in a title for each of the 60 pictures. Only one parcel of 60 titles for one participant.

At the conclusion of the Test the following awards will be paid—in cash—to those who have sent in the largest percentages of correct titles to the pictures:

One First Award	$1,000
One Second Award	750
One Third Award	500
One Fourth Award	400
One Fifth Award	300
One Sixth Award	200
One Seventh Award	150
One Eighth Award	100
One Ninth Award	50
100 Awards of $10 Each	1,000
110 Awards of $5 Each	550
Total	$5,000

Now that the FINAL reprint of Back Pictures is almost here, it becomes more important than ever that you place a standing order for the two papers, Boston American AND Boston Sunday Advertiser, with your newsdealer. You cannot get back numbers of the papers from the office of publication. The newsdealer may have them occasionally but he cannot be depended upon for them and he may NEVER have one when you need it the most.

Give him a standing order. Tell him you want BOTH papers REGULARLY at least while the Title Test is on. The final picture, No. 60, will be printed about April 25th. For a month afterwards the Test Pictures will be printed, two a day, WITH THE CORRECT TITLES UNDER THEM. Then the List of Awards may be expected.

FOR BRIGHT MINDS.

While the present Test is wide open it really is NOT a test for everybody. It IS a test for bright minds, for quick wits, for those who are well grounded in English, in words and their meanings.

One does not like to say too much about the awards, but it will be admitted that they are at least generous. $1,000, $750, $500, $400, $300, $200, $150, $100 and $50 for picking out a few titles and placing them where they belong!

We are having a great time in this Test, everybody!

Are you with us?

Step lively! Sunday and Monday must tell the story. Final re-prints! Last chance!

Answers to correspondents:

Reader—Yes, sir!

Reader—Yes and no. If you may send in one list in your own name and another in the name of a friend. The rule is one list of 60 titles from each person. There is no rule against two, three or three hundred friends taking part as individuals.

C. S., Beachmont—Yes.

WAIT UNTIL END OF TEST.

Wilde, Roach street, Dorchester—I'd like to pull your little ear. Titles must not be sent in before the end of the Test and my poor fingers are lame from saying so. However, the title you have in mind is only 15 miles away from the right one. (Don't smile at Wilde, folks, the letter suggests that she is under-rated.)

W. A. A., Hale street, Lowell—Before the picture is drawn.

C. E., Hudson street, Somerville—Not until the official announcement is made. You will not have to wait long.

C. W., Willows Road, Salem—Accidents will happen in even the best regulated households. That is how No. 21 happened to be standing on its head in part of one edition. The mistake was remedied as speedily as possible. There was no intention to mislead.

WARNING TO READERS.

Miss V. L., Lewiston, Me.—There does not appear to be anything I can do about that except to warn the reader that, with features of the Title Test sort, the Special Extra Edition is one day behind the others. Find the name of your edition in the upper right-hand corner of the first page. Insist upon getting the same edition regularly.

P. L., Old Town, Me.—If I can.

W. J. W., Hyde Park—All right, no more "hints," if you say so. But that one was helpful, You are O. K.

Mrs. J. J. C., Pittsfield, and Mrs. J. M., Portland, Me.—Please see reply to Miss V. L., of Lewiston.

M. J. A., Dorchester—I am having it done.

CHANCE TO CHECK UP.

J. W. L., New Bedford—O. K., except that your name and address must be under each and every picture.

B. C., Somerville—Yes, sir; the official List of Titles will be printed at the end of the Test. Not only that but the boss has promised me room enough to re-print at least two pictures every day, with the correct titles under them. My notion is that you will all be glad to check up for yourselves while the chickens here are at work on thousands of parcels. (I do not quite understand your other question but I CAN tell you this: Every time a Test Picture has appeared the title of that picture has been printed in the List of Titles.

Mildred, Springfield—I expect to be able to announce one week from next Sunday the date on which the names will be made public in the Player Identity Test.

LOBSTERS BY AIRPLANE FOR MOXIE CO. BANQUET

The world's most unimportant record was shattered today. A whole flock of the freshest South Shore lobsters ever served at a down town restaurant were rushed from salt water by special airplane, messenger and motor car for the annual "High Jinks" luncheon of the Moxie Company departmental heads at noon.

The lobsters were ordered yesterday by Vice-President Frank M. Archer, who says that if the record of serving South Shore lobsters in Boston two hours after taking them from the water isn't unimportant enough, it may be announced that this will be the first banquet ever served in the North Station, except to the Directors of the Boston & Maine railroad. And that's where it's going to be.

In honor of the occasion, Mr. Archer has donated the silver tea service, the chest of silver, and a silver mirror that were made for T. N. T. Betty, the famous Moxie cow-girl that toured the country on the Moxie Motorcycle pony. For these and many other things all those present at the dinner are envious. Each department head and each employee received a souvenir book as a personal gift from Mr. Archer.

WOMAN'S ARM THROWN IN BROOK BY DOCTOR

A woman's arm, found in Alewife Brook, between West Somerville and Arlington, provided a gruesome mystery for the Somerville police until Lieutenant Kennedy and Sergeant Howard solved it by locating a physician who admitted amputating the arm. It appears that the patient was superstitious and objected to the arm being buried or cremated. So the doctor threw it in the brook.

TO LAUNCH CANADIAN CHALLENGER SATURDAY

Lunenburg, N. S., March 25.—The schooner Bluenose, designed as a challenger for the International Fishermen's trophy won by the schooner Esperanto of Gloucester, Mass., is to be launched Saturday. Scores of mariners have arrived to witness the event.

Songs of Erin

Seven of the greatest popular songs of the day written and set to music by inspired Irishmen will be given FREE with next Sunday's Boston Sunday Advertiser.

The Co-operating Theatres

More than two hundred high-class New England motion-picture theatres are helping participants in the $5,000 Movie-Play Title Test by flashing the Test Picture on the screen at every performance. The owners and managers of these houses are actuated solely by a desire to be of assistance to those of their patrons who are taking part in the Test. The Boston American is glad to recommend the co-operating theatres to its readers:

FRECKLES

March Worst Month for This Trouble —How to Remove Easily.

There's a reason why nearly everybody freckles in March, but happily there is also a remedy for these ugly blemishes, and no one need stay freckled.

Simply get an ounce of Othine—double strength, from your druggist and apply a little of it night and morning, and in a few days you should see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the light ones have vanished entirely. Now is the time to rid yourself of freckles, for if not removed now they may stay all Summer, and spoil an otherwise beautiful complexion. Your money back if Othine fails.

"DANDERINE"

Girls! Save Your Hair! Make It Abundant!

Immediately after a "Danderine" massage, your hair takes on new life, lustre and wondrous beauty, appearing twice as heavy and plentiful, because each hair seems to fluff and thicken. Don't let your hair stay lifeless, colorless, plain or scraggly. You, too, want lots of long, strong, beautiful hair.

A 25-cent bottle of delightful "Danderine" freshens your scalp, checks dandruff and falling hair. This stimulating "beauty-tonic" gives to thin, dull, fading hair that youthful brightness and abundant thickness.—All druggists!

CORNS

Lift Off with Fingers

Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers. Truly!

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the callouses, without soreness or irritation.

EAT LESS MEAT IF BACK HURTS

Take a glass of Salts to Flush Kidneys if bladder bothers you

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then be fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease. —Advertisement.

MOTHER GIVES BLOOD TO SAVE McLEAN'S PAL

Shooting Victim's Recovery Not Expected Despite Two Operations

Despite two blood transfusion operations made at the City Hospital in a desperate effort to save his life, John F. McCarthy is not expected to live by hospital physicians.

McCarthy, who is twenty-five years old and lives at No. 43 Dale street, Roxbury, was shot in the abdomen yesterday while with John S. (Larry) McLean, the former big league ball player, who was shot dead in the saloon at No. 1100 Washington street.

Unable by probing to locate the bullet which wounded McCarthy, and believing that it might have entered his liver, the physicians determined upon a transfusion of blood operation. The wounded man's mother, Mrs. Mary McCarthy, volunteered, and the doctors finding her strong and healthy, consented. A pint of her blood was transfused into her son's arm.

McCarthy rallied after the operation but soon had a relapse and the physicians determined to operate again. The victim's sister, Miss Katherine McCarthy and a brother volunteered their blood, and the doctors chose the latter and performed the operation a second time. Although the patient again rallied, his death is looked upon as only a question of hours.

John J. Connors, manager of the saloon in which the shooting occurred, was arrested charged with the murder of McLean. He is forty-eight years old, and lives at No. 491 Dudley street, Roxbury. He told the police that he fired in self defence.

McLean and McCarthy are said to have had an altercation with Connors at the bar, and McLean started to climb over the counter when Connors grabbed the revolver from the cash drawer, and fired two shots. One struck McLean, who staggered out into Northampton street and collapsed. Rushed to the hospital, he was pronounced dead. McCarthy, also hit, ran a short distance up Washington street before he collapsed.

530 GOVERNMENT SHIPS INACTIVE IN PORTS

Washington, March 25.—Continued depression in the shipping world has necessitated the tying up of about 530 government merchant vessels at New York, Norfolk, gulf and lake ports, according to records of the Shipping Board today. Reports to the various government departments imitcate that the same depression exists in the shipping circles of Great Britain and Japan. The total value of the vessels which are now used by the merchant marine of the United States is about $800,000,000.

HARDING MAY VISIT ELY AT SOUTHAMPTON, L. I.

Southampton, L. I., March 25.—President Warren G. Harding may spend part of his Summer vacation here as a guest of Dr. Albert H. Ely, it was reported today. Dr. Ely accompanied President Harding on his trip to Florida just before inauguration and acted as his physician at that time. Secretary of State Charles E. Hughes is expected to spend the Summer at Bridgehampton, near here, and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon has leased a cottage here for the Summer.

INJURED POLICEMAN IS AWARDED $27,000

New York, March 25.—The Supreme Court jury here awarded Motorcycle Patrolman Walter T. Menke $27,000 damages against George F. Simons of St. Marys, Pa., whose automobile ran down the policeman's machine on Fifth avenue in January, 1920, causing fracture of Menke's skull. Justice Tierney ruled that it was no part of a policeman's contract of employment that he barter his life or body for wages received.

THREE MONTHS FOR HAVING MOONSHINE

An eight-quart milk can filled with moonshine, whiskey was confiscated by the Woburn police after they arrested Antonio D'Ane here on his home at Belmont street, Woburn. In court today he was sentenced to three months for keeping and exposing liquor for sale. On a previous charge he was fined $100 several weeks ago.

Winthrop High Girls Cut Dress Costs

The girls in the graduating class at Winthrop High School are planning to hand an awful wallop to old Mr. H. C. L. A committee of six girls in the class has formulated five rules which must be adhered to by all the young ladies who plan to receive a diploma next June. Here they are:

1. The dress for graduation shall consist of an all white blouse and skirt of any cotton material, such as organdie, voile, net, lawn, etc., white shoes and stockings, no gloves, and no conspicuous hats for the occasion.

2. No flowers shall be worn at graduation except a single red rose.

3. A simple afternoon or sport dress of any material shall be worn on class day.

4. No flowers shall be sent to the theatre on the evening night.

5. No hats shall be worn on class day.

The plan has the entire approval of Principal Edward R. Clarke. The committee, which is responsible for these drastic dress regulations, consists of Barbara Spaulding, Dorothy Bicknell, Hazel Wentworth, Catherine Goldsmith, and Dorothy Snook.

DIVORCEE

MRS. ELIDA PIZA CRANE

Aurora, Ill., March 25.—Elida Piza Crane, the beautiful Costa Rican girl who came to this country five years ago as the bride of Herbert P. Crane, millionaire manufacturer and clubman, will leave the Crane country estate, "Wild Rose," Monday, for Costa Rica with her little son, Antonio Raphael.

"I will never return to 'Wild Rose Ledge' unless it is to take over what Mr. Crane owes me," she said. Crane paid her $30,000 of the $100,000 agreed upon when she was granted a divorce last Autumn. His attorneys claim he has been unable to raise the balance, although he is rated as a millionaire.

PRIZE IS SPLIT AMONG THREE ARTISTS

Paintings of "Spirit of Transportation" by Ewell, Lie and Parrish Equal, Judges Decide

Honors for the best painting of "The Spirit of Transportation" were divided between James Cady Ewell, Jonas Lie and Maxfield Parrish, according to information received today from Detroit, where the judges viewed the paintings at the Detroit Athletic Club.

The competition was conducted in connection with the automobile shown and the paintings were exhibited in New York, Chicago and Boston. The $1,000 prize, which would have gone to the best painting had the judges been able to agree on one, will be divided among the three successful entrants.

Twelve artists were invited by Eugene B. Clark, president of the Clark Equipment Company, who handled the contest, to dramatize in their own way the influence of transportation on civilization. The jury of award was representative of industry, art and the three systems of transportation—railway, marine and automotive.

LANSING CONDEMNS ACTS OF WILSON AT PARIS

No more subtly denunciatory portrait was ever painted in words than that of President Woodrow Wilson at the peace conference as set forth by former Secretary of State Robert Lansing in his book, "The Peace Negotiations: A Personal Narrative," placed on sale today by Houghton Mifflin Company.

Mr. Lansing is no Boswell in this revelation of the President in Paris. He confines his comment to Mr. Wilson's public acts in connection with the treaty and the League of Nations. Yet, forced to comment on the presidential mental characteristics and habits, he has produced a picture more startling in its way than any lurid court memoirs ever written by cook, chambermaid, chamberlain or fiction-ist.

His verbal diagram of Mr. Wilson's mental processes will not fail to shock staunch admirers of the ex-President. It may give the uninitiated a clew to the mystery of many Wilsonian acts and utterances. But, according to hints thrown out by Mr. Lansing himself, it will not amaze those intimate with Mr. Wilson during his career either in Washington or in Paris.

It will, doubtless, create much comment, as Mr. Lansing's explanation of his own conduct will unquestionably result in his becoming a target for no little abuse. And, indeed, no small amount of space in the book is devoted to what might be termed Mr. Lansing's official apology to the American public for signing a treaty in which he acknowledges he did not believe.

READERS WILL BE SHOCKED.

To those who have regarded the Paris conference as a place where Mr. Wilson maintained the sanctity of the first of his famous "Fourteen Points" in regard to covenants openly arrived at, and who regarded the American delegation as a unanimously minded, harmonious body, the book will be a severe shock.

Distrust at its revelations will not be confined to Mr. Wilson's friends. It will be very strong in certain quarters abroad.

While Mr. Lansing admits writing the book, chiefly as a labor of clearing himself before the American people from suspicions which he blames Mr. Wilson for creating, it is too bad from the point of view of the man in the street that he did not forego the satisfaction of setting in print his rejected suggestions on the treaty and League.

Interesting as these unquestionably are as specimens of how vastly much better the treaty and the League might have been drawn, the fact remains that they stand as discards in the situation. One feels that the space devoted to Mr. Lansing's reasoning on the international situation might have been filled profitably with more disclosures regarding the American delegation and the President.

Yet in view of his purpose in writing the book he one cannot censure the author for fulfilling his avowed purpose. While does not make disappointing the book, and many additional pages he might have written about personages rather than about plans.

On the other hand, one cannot deny the value he has given to his own conclusions on the league and the treaty placed before the public. His scholarly study of the principles of international document of great worth, while future historians will find his book a gold mine for comparison between the way a man with a training in jurisprudence and education and the way it was actually handled.

SIDELIGHTS ARE STRIKING.

But it is handling his sidelights that Mr. Lansing shines. They pop out at once in the most unexpected places, a collection of harmless words forming a most striking impressionistic picture.

His official position gave Mr. Lansing a better opportunity than anyone else outside of the private presidential circle to study Woodrow Wilson's motives. That even with the advantage of position Mr. Lansing was very often in doubt as to the President's motives he makes very clear in his book. Indeed, there are passages where he makes it evident that he questions if Mr. Wilson himself knew of the motives actuating him.

It required no little courage for Mr. Lansing to produce his work, frankly a narrative of unofficial acts rather involving the censure of an official superior. There are points in the story which, read months after the events took place, would seem to make Mr. Lansing appear as lacking the courage of his convictions, careful reading of the extraordinary tale, however, shows that he was in the position of a citizen stranded in the midst of Utopian companions whose ideals and companionship seemed unwelcome to his shipmates. It is not alone what Mr. Lansing has written in cold type, but the plentiful opportunities he has given for reading between the lines which makes his book of value.

DIFFERED ON THE LEAGUE.

Mr. Lansing states that by imputation the President has charged him with wrongly advising the Chief Executive, and has placed him in a false position before the public, to which he pleads his right to address himself in his own defense. While he does not question the constitutional right of the President to conduct the foreign relations of the United States, he asks upon the rights of a diplomatic representative to perform his twofold duties in advising the President, and in preventing the latter from taking any steps which might impair the rights of his country.

Mr. Lansing then summarizes the chief points upon which he and President Wilson differed.

These began with the presence of Mr. Wilson in Paris, participating in a peace delegate, and included the basic principles of the Wilson League of Nations, and secret diplomacy in conducting the negotiations. In all he enumerates seven important points on which he and Mr. Wilson differed.

Not the least interesting section in his first chapter deals with Mr. Wilson's attitude toward the advice of his personally selected Secretary of State, revealing the fact that the latter felt that in dealing with the President he had to use all the diplomacy at his command, and that even then Mr. Wilson was inclined to give his opinions, "little weight."

TRIED TO DISSUADE WILSON.

Mr. Lansing goes into the Wilsonian idea of visiting Paris at some length, tracing the origin and growth of the plans, and advancing several theories as to why Mr. Wilson may have reached this decision. One of these is that the idea had taken such firm root in his head that nothing could dislodge it, a very subtle commentary on Mr. Wilson's mental makeup. Other theories at which he hints without drawing any conclusions are the spectacular nature of the trip, and the possibility that the President doubted the ability of the men he had picked as envoys.

Lansing, in his anxiety over the situation, made an attempt to dissuade Mr. Wilson from his intention of going to Paris. The net result was that the President closed the conversation, and six days later made formal public announcement of his trip abroad.

From that fruitless attempt to change the presidential mind Mr. Lansing dates the beginning of the chief executive's loss of confidence in the judgment of his Secretary of State.

The second point on which Mr. Lansing states he differed from Mr. Wilson was in regard to the League of Nations. He explains carefully that it was not "either than the idea of the league that he objected, and shows that he made this objection known to Mr. Wilson.

The paragraphs which follow throw most interesting sidelights on the methods of Woodrow Wilson as he appeared to his Secretary of State. To begin with, the President did not consult Lansing about his plan for a League of Nations, nor give any intimation that he had prepared such a plan in writing. Lansing believed there were two reasons for this, one because he had always opposed the President's idea of employing international force to enforce the will of the league or its members, and the other because Lansing was a lawyer, and Mr. Wilson had an undisguised contempt for legal minds. Both of the author avers he displayed repeatedly in Paris.

WILSON IGNORED LETTER.

Convinced that open objection to the President's plans for a league based on the idea of force was useless, Lansing explains that he determined to direct his energies toward securing a modification of the President's views.

Mr. Lansing lays great stress upon the difference of opinion between himself and President Wilson on the subject of the covenant of the league, and the fact that nothing which he advocated, chief among which was the Shantung matter, the President would be persuaded to change.

The picture will be released throughout the country as a serial in 22 parts and will be called "The Beginnings of Christianity." It is said to be the most ambitious film produced up to date.

HERE'S SHERLOCK HOLMES.

"SERIALS" are coming into their own with British producers now. Another famous story to come out in that form is the series of Conan Doyle's "Sherlock Holmes" stories, which are being made into 15 episodes.

The three episodes which have been completed so far are "The Yellow Face," "The Dying Detective" and "The Devil's Foot," three of the most exciting tales, in the Sherlock Holmes style, to be remembered that early in the story two brothers and a sister are mysteriously murdered while they are playing cards. When the bodies are found the mystery is intensified by the fact that on each of the three faces is a look of horror and agony, due, Mr. Holmes shows, to the peculiar effects of the poison which killed them. In the film, for some unexplained reason, the three bodies are found in the most peaceful and happy state imaginable, thereby undoubtedly losing much of the thrill that detective stories give us.

H. B. WARNER LOSES.

THE FIRST instance in which an actor has been held responsible for a breach of contract with his manager has come to light in the case of J. D. Williams, a theatrical manager, against H. B. Warner, the movie star.

In the fall of 1918 Warner was engaged to play a leading part in the stage production, "Sleeping Partners," in which he made a decided hit, so much so that it is a fact, that he was swamped with contracts from movie magnates. In February, 1919, he accepted one of these offers and gave his notice to Williams, who applied for an injunction to restrain him from leaving, which was granted him.

Warner, however, ignored this and left for California, where he has been playing in pictures ever since. The case was tried the other day and Warner was forced to pay Williams $15,000 plus interest from February, 1919, and all costs of the trial.

JUST LIKE THAT!

THERE are some, it seems, to to whom an offer of $100,000 to go into the movies means nothing. Sophia Lyons, formerly known as "the international queen of the underworld," refused a contract for that sum the other day.

Since she gave up her life of crime she has made nearly a million dollars and spends thousands each year in trying to help those who are in prison.

When she turned down the movie offer she explained that she didn't want the publicity that went with it.

MOVIE COSTUME BALL.

A COSTUME ball was given at the Hotel Ambassador in Los Angeles a short while ago, at which the movie players turned out in hordes.

Harold Lloyd was there with his leading lady, Mildred Davis, as well as Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Meighan, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cain, and Wallace Reid and his wife, Dorothy Davenport. Earle Williams led the grand march with Mildred Harris, and Charlie Murray was master of ceremonies.

Rudolph Valentino and Alice Lake won the votes for the best costumes. Valentine appeared in the Spanish costume that he wears as Julio in "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse." Alice Lake went as a Spanish senorita.

OBJECT TO HAMON FILM.

ALTHOUGH Clara Smith Hamon has signed a contract to appear in films, she will save difficulty in getting her pictures shown. The Allied Amusement Industries of California have banded together to oppose her screen appearance.

They adopted a resolution declaring that "The association is of the opinion that an exhibition of this sort would unduly and improperly put a premium on violence."

Here's another instance when the producers and exhibitors are several jumps ahead of censorship.

CAMERA CLICKS.

MYRTLE REED'S well known stories are in the process of filming. Already "Lavender and Old Lace," one of the best known of these novels, has been finished and will be released very soon. Marguerite Snow and Louis Bennison play the leading roles.

SOMETHING must be wrong with the movies." F. P. A. said in his column yesterday. "The title of the screen version of Sentimental Tommy' is 'Sentimental Tommy.'"

IT HAS BEEN rumored that D. W. Griffith is planning a trip abroad to film "Dere." Nothing has been said regarding his former plans to make "Faust" with Lillian Gish.

THEDA BARA closed her tour in the stage production, "The Rose Flame" on account of illness and has returned to New York to make further plans regarding her screen career. She has just turned down an offer to tour in vaudeville.

BEFORE Wanda Hawley went into the movies, she started out on an operatic career. She had already appeared in concert with Rina Ponnia and Albert Spaulding when she suddenly lost her voice.

NOT FOR PARIS!

ARTISTIC PARIS, according to a cable sent to the New York Times, is highly excited over the fact that some practical person had the idea of running movies in the National Academy of Music, where the opera is given each year, during those Summer months in which the houses are dark.

MOTION PICTURE NEWS

Here's what "Big Bill" Hart is looking forward to when he takes that year's vacation he's been talking about. "There was another—much bigger," he said, "but it got away!"

By FRIEDA DAVIS.

AMERICA is not the only place where motion picture actors are blithely turning their legitimate theatres into movie houses. In England, too, they have taken up the custom. Following Sir Harry Lauder's engagement at the Palace Theatre in London, the house has been turned into a picture theatre.

The first film to be shown there will be an Italian production giving the history of the Old Testament, beginning with the Creation and closing with the reign of King Solomon. Although there are 30,000 feet of film in the picture—that is approximately 30 reels—for this particular showing it will be cut down to 15,000 feet, which will take about two hours and 15 minutes to run off.

It is interesting to note that English audiences are willing to sit through such a long picture, Americans would lose no time in demanding something shorter and peppier.

The picture will be released throughout the country as a serial in 22 parts and will be called "The Beginnings of Christianity." It is said to be the most ambitious film produced up to date.

LODGE IS GIVEN TREMENDOUS POWER

Will Become Chairman of Republican Steering Committee in Senate

By CHARLES O. POWER.

Washington, March 25.—Senator Lodge of Massachusetts is to be the most powerful member of the next Congress.

In addition to his other positions of influence he is to become chairman of the Republican steering committee of the Senate, replacing Senator McCumber of North Dakota, who will retire from this committee when the extra session convenes to take a place on the Committee on Committees.

The steering committees are the governing bodies of both branches of Congress. With a Republican President, an overwhelming margin of Republican influence in both House and Senate, and national and international questions of almost unprecedented importance, the steering committees of the next session will function more positively and powerfully than ever before.

HONDELL'S HOUSE LEADER.

Congressman Mondell of Wyoming will be the head of the steering committee in the House, and there is a perfect understanding that he and Senator Lodge will act as the official liaison officers between Congress and the White House, with Senator Lodge as the chief spokesman of the President's wishes.

They will bring the two branches of Congress into harmonious relations on the favored program of the President. They will spread before the committees the President's best thought on pending and contemplated legislation.

Senator Lodge is now chairman of the Republican caucus, which carries with it floor leadership, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee and a member of several other important committees. To these responsibilities is to be added the duty and the responsibility of chief steerer or pilot-veyor of the aims and objects of the President.

Thus is the Massachusetts statesman the holder of tremendous power, the possessor of most unusual influence. It does not seem to worry him. He appeared very cheerful and chipper during a brief interview I had with him.

He said he had not talked with the President about the peace treaty or foreign affairs recently. He thinks the President is more concerned with domestic affairs just at present.

SCOUTS TREATY STORY.

His attention was called to a newspaper statement that Representative Hardin had secured the assent of every member of the Foreign Relations Committee but that of Senator Knox of Pennsylvania to a proposal to submit the peace treaty minus the covenant to the Senate during the extra session.

"That is absurd," declared Senator Lodge. "It is silly on the face of it. I know of no such canvass of the committee by the President or for the President. Do you think Senators Johnson and Borah, for instance, would agree to any such thing as that? Can you imagine Hardin undoing such a thing as that? Surely, not President Harding. I have not talked to him about the further consideration of the treaty and I have full faith and reliance upon his attitude upon the treaty as I know it will be plained in his campaign announcements. I do not believe he has swerved one iota from the position he held when he was a candidate."

SPECIAL SERVICES AT ST. PAUL'S FOR EASTER

Easter Day will be marked by a number of special services at the Cathedral Church of St. Paul. There will be a celebration of the Holy Communion at 6, 7, 8, 9 and 11 o'clock in the morning. At the 11 o'clock service Dean Rousmaniere will be the preacher. A children's service of Easter carols will be held at 4 p. m. The Rev. John W. Suter, Jr., religious educational secretary for the Diocese of Massachusetts, will make a special address to the children. The service will be conducted by the Rev. Dr. Arthur Upson, superintendent of the Cathedral School. At the 7:30 service Dean Rousmaniere will preach and will also be a feature, and the sermon will be delivered by Dean Rousmaniere.

CONTRIBUTIONS POURING INTO IRISH RELIEF

Mitchell Council, A. A. R. I. R. Second Donation Amounts to $1,100

Relief dollars are rolling into local headquarters of the American Committee for Relief in Ireland in gratifying amounts, with the many Catholic organizations and leaders uniting in the great drive.

Garret Barry council, A. A. R. I. R., composed of members of St. Benedict's parish in Somerville, has turned over $1,328 to the fund. This is one of the largest amounts contributed by any of the councils in Boston. Rev. Fr. Henry Grady is pastor of the church.

James Erwin, secretary of John Mitchell council, A. A. R. I. R. brought in a second contribution, amounting to $1,100, and John Whelan of Linwood, enclosed a money order for $250.

Rev. Andrew J. Fitzgerald of St. Mary's Church, Holliston, sent a letter commending the work and enclosing a check for $160. He said: "The blessings and prayers of the Irish people will reward those who are assisting in this great charity, all of whom deserve the deep gratitude of Ireland."

From Rutland came an encouraging letter signed by Cornelius J. Brown of the Central Trust Co. Inside which he enclosed a check for $12, collected from well-wishers at that institution. He said all of them had fought for the American flag.

Sacred Heart Church, No. 94, M. C. of C., sent in a check, one from Miss Margaret Brenhan, president, division A. O. H., of Holyoke, for $117, and the other from Mrs. Catherine Connelly, president of Chicopee Falls L. A. A. O. H., for $14.

International Boilermakers and Shipbuilders' Union, No. 371, of Lowell, through its secretary, John J. Leary, collected $159.60 from the members of organization.

For eczema you must have an effective ointment; generally we use one; and a 25 cent box is so good for such trouble that one box makes no promise, but we say it here and now. Apply Resinol Ointment to the itch and rash, gently, but well, as the skin should be cleansed first, and a quality so nearly perfect cannot be equaled by pimples, irritations, burns, itching feet.

SILK WORTH $5,000 STOLEN FROM TRUCK

New York, March 25. Theft of silk valued at $5000 from a truck in a downtown street was reported to the police here by a chauffeur for a large silk finishing firm. After binding and gagging the occupants of the truck, the chauffeur said, the three men who held him up removed the 250 pieces of silk

WOUNDED VET FLED HOSPITAL FEARING HARM

James F. Munroe Arrives in Haverhill from New York; Makes Grave Charges

Haverhill, March 25.—James F. Munroe, wounded World War veteran, confined in the state hospital at Tewksbury, coming from the Fox Hills Hospital, Staten Island, and makes grave charges against the management of the New York institution.

Munroe's experiences at the hospital were such that he said he did not dare to remain there longer, fearing bodily injury. Unable to walk and so seriously wounded that he must be carried to the train, Munroe accompanied the journey to this city without any assistance from the Fox Hills Hospital authorities or the Red Cross, he says. On the journey from Haverhill to New York he had two attendants.

Lack of discipline prevails at the Fox Hills Hospital, Munroe said, to such an extent that patients pass in review and create disturbances at night, keeping the rest of the patients awake and being so violent in their behavior as to cause apprehension upon the part of the patients for their safety. He said the food was so poor that he would have to give it up if there was no change, if siege of six weeks is to be said.

SAVES BABY AND WIFE'S MOTHER FROM FLAMES

Naval Mate and Two Members of His Family Burned in Winthrop Fire

Risking his life to save his baby and mother-in-law Henry W Drury a chief pharmacist's mate attached to the Charlestown Navy Yard was badly burned about the head and face by flames that ruined his apartment at No. 31 Great avenue, Winthrop Highlands.

Passing automobilists seeing smoke coming from the kitchen windows of the two-story frame building in which the Drurys lived called the attention of Miss Edna Hill, in charge of a nearby bakery, to the danger.

RESCUES BABE FIRST.

She rushed up stairs to the Drury apartments and found them ignorant of the fact that their kitchen was a seething mass of flames.

Sending his wife downstairs to safety, Drury rushed through the smoke to a bedroom opposite the kitchen, where the baby and its grandmother, Mrs. Elizabeth E. Harper, sixty-two years old, were asleep.

Drury seized the baby first, and wrapping it in a blanket, carried it through the fast growing fire to the top of the stairs, where he rushed took it from him and brought the child to the mother below. The baby was unharmed save for a slight burn on the cheek and the loss of all its hair.

TAKEN TO HOSPITAL.

Drury rushed back to the room where the crippled Mrs Harper was struggling to escape. In getting below the navy man was badly burned about the face. He carried the woman to the top of the stairs. She was severely burned about the neck and face as well as the upper body.

WOMEN IN ROW OVER 'LEG SHOW' IN UPLIFT FILM

New Bedford's Child Welfare Campaign Causes Criticism of Y. W. C. A.

New Bedford, March 25—Criticism of an alleged "leg display" in the educational film, "foot folly," on the cover of the health week program, threatens to disrupt the plans for a child welfare and health campaign scheduled for next week under the joint auspices of the Young Women's Christian Association and the New Bedford Women's Club.

Objection to the film sponsored by the Y. W. C. A. and used by the National Association to show the folly of wearing high heeled shoes, was first voiced by Mrs. S. H. Resnick, chairman of the Women's Club health week committee, who pronounced it "highly improper for display before mixed audiences." Sharp retaliation promptly came from the Y. W. C. A.

The program prepared by the Women's Club to supplement the cover design of two youthful figures, dressed and the offended that their film, showing foot and limb freedom possible from the wearing of "sensible" shoes was at all improper, the almost nude shapes on the program cover must be decided so.

LARRY McLEAN WAS PICTURESQUE CHARACTER IN BASEBALL

PRIMROSE PATH HAD APPEAL

Larry Was Great Catcher and Biggest Backstop in Major Leagues

By DAMON RUNYON.

Larry McLean, killed in a saloon brawl, was a quaint character.

"The old old saying 'he was his own worst enemy,' only too often true of men in the sport game, applies in his case. Everybody who knew Larry liked him and only his weakness for the merry go round of life prevented him from being the greatest catcher ever produced by the game of baseball.

At first get hearted and flamboyant, and rather a lascivious and scrupulous one, McLean was considered as one of the best scrappers of his day. He was a wonder at both ends of the battery, and few could break up plays in the pinch better than Larry.

He was big and perhaps fast enough for the position, but he was a terrific hitter, weighing one hundred and ninety pounds. It had a special arm, and could handle the ball over the batsman's head easily, and base with marvelous skill.

Larry Hit .500 in World's Series

For instance, McLean was a natural hitter. In the world's series of 1912 when Tris Speaker, the Red Sox star, got a single off Mathewson, Chief Meyers got behind the bat, played errorless and batted .500.

It was after that series that the other members of the team, shutting up the wine, started to trample McLean for more than a instance in view of his work, and broke the big fellow's heart.

While he made no big league reputation while he was playing in long service, he joined the Reds in 1911, and it was because of his short term there that the other Cincinnati players did not think he was entitled to a full share of the series money.

McLean, a native of Lake Echo, N. S., and started playing ball at Washington grammar School at Lawrence. He also attended the Chandler Mutual training School. His first professional engagement was in 1899 he played first base for the New Haven team.

In 1900 he went to the Cape Town Federation and managed the ball club there, then catching a time for the St. John club of New Brunswick. Next he was signed as an extra catcher by the Red Sox. Needing more experience, he was sent to manage and play for the Halifax club of the New England league. Here he caught three months' time.

Cub Scout First Discovered Him

In 1901 he went to St. Paul and [illegible] Lajoie. [illegible] Mercer scouting for [illegible] McLean [illegible] from [illegible] Cincinnati club of the National and was [illegible] for the [illegible] year.

The Reds then brought him with them to the Winter of 1902, when he was traded to [illegible] for Mike Mitchell, catcher, [illegible] Mitchell was [illegible] for Mike Brown and Jack Taylor for Mike Brown and Jack O'Neill. The Cardinals agreed that Larry [illegible] where he remained [illegible] the Reds then bought him back until the Winter of 1910 when he was traded to [illegible] for Mitchell. McGraw traded to [illegible] that he made for Larry, and for a time [illegible] the big fellow [illegible] as McGraw's second string catcher.

GIANTS, IN GREAT TRIM, SHOULD MAKE PACE IN OLD LEAGUE

NEW YORK TEAM STRONG IN ALL BUT TWO POSITIONS

By NICK FLATLEY.

Galveston, Tex., March 25.—Those New York Giants, who expect to be the pace makers in the National League race, and who should be, by the same token, are in mighty good trim right now, and will be in perfect shape when the curtain goes up, unless they hit a lot of bad weather in their return to the North, which has already started.

They dropped into Galveston for a visit and a few cool afternoons, as a couple of the rookies in their ranks treated rather heavily by the sandcrab weather, the class of McGraw's outfit stuck out just the same.

A lot of loose conversation had been scattered broad as regard the physical condition of Dave Bancroft, one of the world's great shortstops, but Davey is the healthiest sick man we've ever peeked at. He was strapped to have heart failure, and to lose pounds in her weight, but he waltzes around on the diamond just as nimbly as ever, and has the same flashy work and slugger, as far as we can see.

Giants Weak in a Couple of Places

These Giants are a well trained, in the box have a good catching staff but have a couple of stickers in the outfield the size of which he garden. Third base has been handed over to Joe Dugan, who was a sensation with the A's last year for the best people of seasons. Joe according to all reports, is a sensational fielder but rather a weakling with the willow.

Certainly against the Galveston pitchers he looked more as though the sort of fellow who could feed a hurler with a lot of stuff. It doesn't have much chance at the field although he scooped up set flashes during the practice. The swarm of war correspondents with the club are all loud in their praises of the youngster as a fielder, but nobody dares to hope that he will swat the onion much.

Frisch Class of League at Second Base

ALL-STAR SHOW AT C. A. A. DESPITE PROTESTS OF MINISTERS

DONOVAN ON WITH SILVA

Leonard Opposes Farren While O'Flanagan Battles Armstrong Tomorrow Night

By JACK CONWAY.

Despite the protests of Congregational ministers, the boxing game will be continued at Scenic Temple. The Commonwealth A. A. will be on the job with an all-star show tomorrow night, and will probably remain active at Scenic Temple for some time to come, as it has a long lease on the place.

Matchmaker Tom Goodwin announced today that Mickey Donovan of Roxbury, who wrote Harry Silva of the West End in the feature bout on last month has been training for the past week with Eddie Shevlin of Roxbury. This will mean that Donovan will be much improved boxer when he battles Silva as there are few better students of the ring game beneath the Dartmouth Eddie.

Shevlin has given Donovan special lessons in fighting. This has been the Brockton boy's chief weakness. Donovan is a good box her and usually does well at long range, but when he gets to close quarters he does not know how to properly defend himself against the attacks of a more experienced opponent.

Jimmy Fraser states that Donovan will report at 10 o'clock sharp tomorrow night as Silva is a fine opponent and eager to stage a slow, clever bout.

Dennis Barron of East Boston and Tommy Reed of the North End will engage in another ten-session affair, while Armstrong of the North End and Neddo Flanagan of Malden are also listed to travel the ten-round route.

St. Joseph's Club to Stage Amateur Show

The St. Joseph's T. A. Society will put on the job with an open boxing tournament a week from tonight. The will be contests at 108, 115, 125 and 145 pounds. Barron Ross next Friday with John W. Manning, No. 1 Cambridge street.

Famous Trainer Getting Johnny Clinton Fit

Dan Dolligan, one of the world's foremost trainers of athletes, is getting Johnny Clinton into condition for the latters championship bout with Jimmy Driscoll, New England lightweight champ, which will take place at the Carlisle Club's show at the Grand Opera House next Monday night. Dolligan has conditioned such notable ring men as Matt Wells, Kid Lewis, Jack (Kid) Levy, Billy Brennan and Johnny Dundee. He has a gold medal set with diamonds which he received for recognition of his training Matt Wells, Tom Thomas, Young Joseph, Eugene Criqui and Charley Lord. Lord has belt winners.

The celebrated trainer stated today that Clinton will not have any difficulty in making 135 pounds for Monday night's match. He asserted that Eddie Mack's protege is one of the hardest punching lightweights he has ever seen in action and that he has a fine chance of winning by a knockout next Monday night.

Jack Perry Due in Boston Today

Jack Perry, Pittsburgh's welterweight, was expected to arrive in our fair city today. It is known that Perry is billed to collide with one Eddie Shevlin of Roxbury in a ten-round bout at the Armory A. A. show at Mechanics Building next Monday night. Among other things the Pittsburgh warrior has flattened Johnny Griffiths of Akron, O., in seven rounds. He has also been beaten about every welterweight of note with the exception of Jack Britton and Ted (Kid) Lewis. These are two fighters handing setbacks to either of these men.

Tillo Is Prepared to Accomodate Carney

Perry is rated as a sweet puncher and a good boxer. He will require a lot of these assets if he is to smash his way to a win over Shevlin. The latter has been fighting in brilliant form of late and does not know of any reason why he should not be out front when the final bell goes for closing through the well known route next Tuesday night.

Frank Tillo, North End welterweight, is perfectly willing to accommodate Billy Carney if the latter is really eager to see action in the ring, declared Henry Meyers today. Henry went on to state that Carney was recently ineligible for matches because a decision over Tillo at Worcester. The North End boy was not the least bit pleased with the result of the up State quarrel and would now like to put the skids under Carney.

O'Brien and Miller Ready for Action

Cy Goodwin also called today with the information that Matchmaker O'Brien and Kid Charley (Chick) Miller (two of the busiest members of the stable of boxers, will be pressed to form and win new ring glory after Easter. Goodwin stated that O'Brien will take Thomas S. Canadian welterweight champion, while Miller is anxious for an opportunity to flatten any of our noble welterweights.

GARDINI POSTS $1,000 FORFEIT FOR BOUT

Italian Champion Now Sure of Meeting Cyclone Burns at Mechanics' Building

The last hitch in the Furness-Gardini match has been settled by the posting of Gardini's forfeit of $1,000 to guarantee his appearance against Burns in Mechanics Building on next Wednesday night. Tom Burns, acting for the Italian, reported that his forfeit in the form of a certified check had been forwarded to George Bothner of New York, who will be the final stakeholder, and in all probabilities will be referee. Al Byers' forfeit had arrived last week and he registered the matter appears to have been straightened out.

The details for the handing of the show will be done through Promoter Toohey, he is one of the experienced in taking care of big crowds without congestion while the sale of tickets will be confined to Toohey's office in the Hanover Trust Building instead of having them scattered all over. By this method the patron gets a better selection and results in greater satisfaction all around.

While Gardini settled the fans may well and ask for one of the greatest contests ever staged in this city between men of this weight class.

"For Love"

An Absorbing Romance By Ruby M. Ayres

Philip Is Agitated by the Conflict of Love and Duty

PHILIP got up and began to walk about the room.

"There's nothing for me to worry about, mother," he said more gently. Eva's all right — she's wondering right too good for me. I shall shake down comfortably enough. It's only just . . . just the loss of it . . . I've been free — I've never been tied at all . . . " He laughed in an uneasy way. "Was time here he would have felt if Kitty Arlington had been the girl he was to marry? He wondered. Somehow, in spite of everything he did not think so. It had been easy to make love to her. He pushed the thought from him resolutely. She had thrown him over. He had wiped her out of his life forever.

"I had hoped that perhaps you might both live here with us," Mrs. Winterdick said faltering. "I am sure if I spoke to Eva about it . . . she seems such a nice girl."

Philip interrupted.

"She'd hate it, and so should I. It's kind of you, mother, but I know it never pays. We'll be better in a house of our own . . . and as it's going to be given to us free of charge, well . . . "

"Phil . . . Phil," said his father, rebukingly, his was shocked at the hard bitterness in his son's voice.

He Swung Round

The young man swung round. His eyes looked very fiery.

"I thought you'd both be pleased," he said loudly. "I quite expected to be overwhelmed with congratulations. Haven't I done the right thing? Don't you want me to get married after all?"

Mr. Winterdick had risen. He stood rubbing his hands together nervously.

"Yes, yes—of course, of course," he said. "It's only that we were surprised — it was so unexpected . . . "

Philip stared at him, then he burst out laughing.

It really struck him as being intensely funny after all that had happened that his father should say he was surprised.

"Well, it's all signed and sealed," he said more quietly. "So you can see about a new gel'us mother. It seems that we've got to leave the country to see us married. Ted Dennison is going to give us what he calls a bangup wedding — champagne flowing like water, and all that kind of business."

He broke off suddenly.

Buried deep down in his heart there had been such dreams of the future—such tender dreams of his wedding-day—dreams of which he had been half ashamed, and now . . . nameless mirrored the impossible future — he was all he had to look forward to.

There was a tragic silence in the beautiful room. Then Mrs. Winterdick went over to her son and laid a hand on his shoulder.

"Phil," she said gently.

"Yes, mother . . . "

"You want to do it, dear," she said trembling. "You've got a very little before you and you're quite a man, your father's — are nearly done. It's not too late— the girl can be told the truth—She must be made to understand." She looked away from him, and her eyes wandered over the room. She loved every inch of it, but she loved this man more.

Philip raised his hand, took hers, and kissed it on the soft palm. Then he put her gently away.

"You don't understand, mother," he said gently. "It is too late—it's not! he said steadily. "I could do no less than take it. I told you so when we were alone. Then that I should not come back. He tried the starter again, and this time the motor began to chug encouragingly. There were tears in Kitty's blue eyes.

"I was sorry directly you were gone," she said in a low voice. "I was so sure you would come back the next day—I hoped so. I loved you, Phil."

He laughed bitterly.

"You were so sure that you got us a flirtation with Peter Dennison," he said savagely. "If it's any satisfaction to you to know it, I did come back—like a fool! I ought to have known better. I went along to see you the next evening, and I saw you in the hammock—letting that boy kiss you. His voice was scornful, that finished me for me."

Her tears were flowing fast now. Philip glanced back at the house fortunately they were hidden from view by the window.

"Goodby," he said curtly.

He felt that he would have given ten years of his life to have avoided the scene.

Kitty brushed her tears away. "You will never love her as you loved me," she said.

Philip looked at her and his heart contracted.

"No," he said, "I sincerely hope not." He drove off without another word. But his light-heartedness had gone.

When a Girl Marries

"OH, how kind of you!" I cried, [illegible] with true Pollyanna delight. "I didn't anticipate [illegible] Then his tone changed to one of respectful yet keen attentiveness. "If you stay in town, ma'am, I suppose you'd be sendin' for Hedwig to open [illegible] apartment?"

"I'm not likely to open my apartment, Lyons," I said quietly and in a tone of dismissal that procured for me the silence I craved.

Left to myself, I sank back among the luxurious cushions of Tony's car and gave myself over to considering my problems. What I was driving to meet I couldn't know. Father Andrew's telegram had been non-committal, but it was at least half likely that I was on the verge of a plunge into a situation which must disgrace Neal.

I wasn't mentally fit to cope with Neal's problems. His duty to himself and his rightful attitude regarding Phoebe eluded me. Of course, these weren't my problems. But thinking of them kept me from dwelling too bitterly on my separation from Jim.

Never before had my need of Father Andrew been so sore as it was now, when perhaps I couldn't call on him for help. And if I found myself cut off from asking his aid and advice, to whom could I turn?

To the long runway I saw Father Andrew plodding. After a minute he got to the gate itself and stood there, peering about expectantly. At his side was a stooped old man.

My heart began thudding like a sledge-hammer. I knew—knew beyond the possibility of a merciful doubt. That must be the father [illegible] grable little half-starved child.

The Passionate Pilgrim

By Samuel Merwin

"I KNOW. But would it make a particle of difference? They'll find him out before morning."

"They may not. You and I are the only ones to tell. And we're not supposed to know it."

"But we're going to run his picture to-morrow. There's an order for it there. I think you're sitting on it. Every paper in the country will run it."

Margie continued to smoke and think.

"I feel a little as you do, Mike," she remarked. "I'd like to be easy on him. Though goodness knows he's nothing to me. . . . I was thinking. You remember that circulation stunt they tried here way before last—printed a man's picture every day, with and without a hat, full face and profile, told what part of the city he'd be wandering around that day, and offered a hundred dollars to anyone that recognized him? And in eight days nobody got the hundred. Think'll be an old out, of course. No, I'm not at all sure they'd find him out."

"True," mused Mr. Hitt. "There's a good deal in that. And the poor devil's had publicity enough in his life without dragging him through this half again."

New Editor

Did the new man send up?"

The "new man" was the managing editor who had succeeded Winterbeck. He was a burly, close-mouthed young man from New York, with driving ways, and a brisk, even aggressive superiority to Middle Western manners.

Yes. And he'll be sending again if I don't rush it down," Mr. Hitt sighed and the patient I nes about his mouth settled more deeply. "Things are different."

Mr. Hitt smiled faintly, then plunged at the mass of papers before him.

During this hour, from six to seven of a pleasant Summer evening, a task more or less similar to that now being performed by Mr. Hitt was being gone through in every considerable newspaper office in America. The Wall story had "broken" again. News came in the form of a Associated Press dispatch. This in itself, despite its dignified, even [illegible]-paid condensation, was striking account of the last hours of the most sensationally picturesque woman in North America. Her extraordinary castle was described, with the refuge to which she had mailed away during the last few weeks, when she was too ill to care for them. The bizarre story of her earlier life was retold, as was the dramatic killing of Senator Watt and, in detail, the most notorious of all trials in recent American history. The pathetic death of Cleaty figured, of course, with Henry's defiance of the court and his subsequent imprisonment. Toward the latter part of the dispatch, the emphasis shifted from the madame and the senator and Cleaty to Henry himself, as the only one of that strangely assorted quartet now left on earth. Much was made of his sudden world-fame, followed so swiftly by the shock of his imprisonment, and, some time after that, his disappearance from civilized life. He had been reported from Alaska, as from China, parts of Europe, Morocco and obscure villages in the United States. His publishers, in New York, denied the slightest knowledge of his present whereabouts, beyond the bare announcement that they had received no definite word of his death. The attorney for the Watt estate, one H. C. Parker of Chicago, had "nothing to say" to the reporters. This touch of present mystery gave an added journalistic value to the announcement that Calvery was madame's axis hair.

Personal Interest

It was about this literary skeleton that all but a few of the principal newspapers of the country at once proceeded to build out the flesh and blood and clothing of "personal interest."

It couldn't have been later than half past six or a quarter to seven when Abel Timothy, flabbily black of countenance, walking heavily and slow, returning to the News Building to take up the night grind, met a reporter named Ruggles, who was rushing around to a certain old alley tavern for a drink. Timothy gladly joined him.

To Timothy's casual, "What's on?" Ruggles replied.

"Got to pitch in on this dam' Watt row. Writing a 'Margie Daw' story."

Timothy left Ruggles at the curb. The liquor glowed warmly within him. He stood there, watching the early evening crowd flow by, wishing Margie would happen along. He had thought of a thing or two to say to her. She was in the shape in his temporarily disordered mind as a deceitful and ungrateful woman.

Another thought was creeping in. He moved along the street now. His glance was furtive. His color was rising a little. He paused before the News building, started up the alley that led to the "annex," stopped, came back to the street, started down it in a little way and stood staring in at the drug store window. Finally, with a quick glance about, he pulled down his coat lapels, set his tie straightened his hat, and started for Oswald Qualters' home, in the older aristocratic section, almost down town, just before you reached the Hill.

Qualters, who had no illusions as to the stuff of which great reputations are made, and made it a point to be agreeable to newspaper people, had just sat down to dinner with his family, but came in at once to see his unexpected caller.

Timothy, uneasy, somewhat wandering in speech, told his story.

"You don't say!" said Qualters. "So Stafford is Calvery. A jailbird, eh! Well, my friends will be interested to learn that! You say it's coming out in tomorrow's paper?"

"No—no, I don't think it is, as it stands now."

"But why not?"

"Well, you see he worked with us for a little while. There's only one or two of us that know who he is, and we'd hardly give him away. But if the other papers heard of it they'd camp right on his trail. He couldn't dodge 'em. Then it would come to us through the City Press, and we'd have to run it, too. Our managing editor wouldn't care a damn, anyway. He didn't know Stafford. And he'd run anything. He's from New York. . . . You understand, I don't care to appear in this in any way. And I'd rather you wouldn't take it up with the News. Not direct. Just let it come around through the City Press."

He left an impression of a fat man acting under great emotional pressure. Personal feeling, of course. Curious! . . . Before returning to the dining room Qualters called up Harvey O'Neil and instructed him to send at once for reporters from the Herald, Press and Globe and set them on Mr. Stafford-Calvery. O'Neil thought the best way would be to have one of the police officials let it out to the newspaper bureau at headquarters. They left it that way.

Goat-Getters

One dollar will be paid for each letter printed.

Of course I don't mind my wife taking the small change out of my pocket. But just after paying $1.50 for a tire tester she pulled it apart, thinking it was a dime bank.

Comparing the Men

In her mind she was comparing Jim with Peter Dennison, and Peter suffered by the contrast.

He was only a weighing stiff, and boyishly built compared Philip was a man—and looked and moved like a man every inch of him.

"I haven't seen you for some time," she said presently. "Not since that night you—"

He broke in hurriedly.

"No—you've been away, haven't you?" The time passes so quickly . . . "To you, perhaps," she said slowly.

She looked away from him down the hot dusty road with a little sick feeling of jealousy.

"I only came back last night," she said again. "There was another little silence. Then, "I have not congratulated you," she went on. "I suppose I may?"

"Thank you." Philip straightened his back, took off his hat and wiped his hot forehead. If only the confounded engine would start!

"I was surprised, of course," Kitty said. She walked a moment; then she added, in a low voice, "You might have given me another chance, Phil."

Philip looked at her with hard eyes.

"You gave me a very complete dismissal," he said harshly. "I could not have taken it differently. I told you so when I sent me away then that I should not come back. He tried the starter again, and this time the motor began to chug encouragingly. There were tears in Kitty's blue eyes.

"I was sorry directly you were gone," she said in a low voice. "I was so sure you would come back the next day—I hoped so. I loved you, Phil."

He laughed bitterly.

"You were so sure that you got us a flirtation with Peter Dennison," he said savagely. "If it's any satisfaction to you to know it, I did come back—like a fool! I ought to have known better. I went along to see you the next evening, and I saw you in the hammock—letting that boy kiss you. His voice was scornful, that finished me for me."

Her tears were flowing fast now. Philip glanced back at the house fortunately they were hidden from view by the window.

"Goodby," he said curtly.

He felt that he would have given ten years of his life to have avoided the scene.

Kitty brushed her tears away. "You will never love her as you loved me," she said.

Philip looked at her and his heart contracted.

"No," he said, "I sincerely hope not." He drove off without another word. But his light-heartedness had gone.

Step Lively! Gates to $5,000 Title Test Are About to Close! Picture No. 27

GOSH, HOW TIME FLIES!—Does any member of the "Old Timers' Club" recognize himself in this photograph taken twenty years ago on Fifth avenue at Fortieth street where the Public Library now stands? What queer looks! outfits they wore in those days. Pipe the lids the flappers and gay dogs used to sport. That's what they will say two score years hence. (Keystone.)

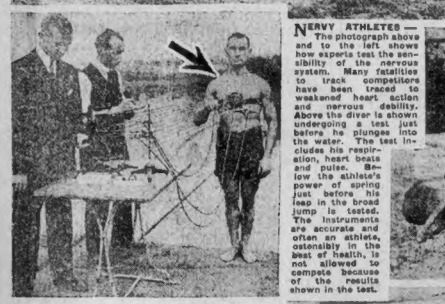
BA-A-A, I WANT ME MOTHER—This gigantic calf was made by the students of Paris as part of a float for the lenten carnival. (W. N.)

GOLDEN GIRLS—Young lady, how would you like to earn $50,000 a year? The two women shown in the big dollar mark to the left do, and they think nothing of it, too. Mrs. A. J. Stasny, above, is the first woman to make a success of the popular song business. She started on $75 with a song called "I Found You Among the Roses." She's in clover now. Below you gaze on Mrs. Henrietta R. H. Ried, former Wall street operator. She was formerly treasurer of the big Bush Terminal Company in New York. Speak up, ladies, do you earn more than this? (Int.)

STONE ANGEL COLLECTS PENNIES—This little girl is shown depositing her savings in the box resting on the knees of the little angel. Statues like this have sprung up all over Germany in aid of the poor. While Berlin's rich revel the poor are suffering. (K. & H.)

SKIDDING DEATH—In rounding a curve at a moderate rate of speed on a country road near Covington, Ky., this machine skidded and overturned, pinning the two occupants beneath it. The victims were found hours later as the road is little traversed.

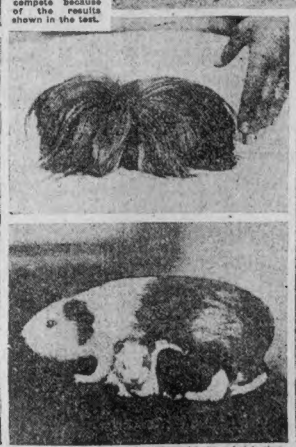
NERVY ATHLETES—The photograph above and to the left shows how experts test the sensibility of the nervous system. Many fatalities to track competitors have been traced to weakened heart action and nervous debility. Above the diver is shown undergoing a test just before he plunges into the water. The test includes his respiration, heart beats and pulse. Below the athlete's power of spring just before his leap in the broad jump is tested. The instruments are accurate and often an athlete, ostensibly in the best of health, is not allowed to compete because of the results shown in the test.



WAIT 'TILL THE SUN SHINES, NELLY—Here's the latest wrinkle, girls, the sunshade handbag. You can carry your bathing suit to the shore in it and then use it as a sunshade. This girl can keep the sun away but not the sand. (K. & H.)

STOP YOUR TICKLIN', NOW!—Remember when you used to hurry through your supper in order to rush down to the circus grounds to get a job watching the elephants in order to see the show? Master Joe Calahan didn't have to do that 'cause he knows the keeper. He is shown astride "Babe" and tickling her ear. The animal and the youngster are great friends. "Babe" is a feature of one of the big circuses. Will shortly tour the country. (Int.)

MORE MONKEY SHINES—"John Daniel," a specially trained gorilla, is shown here enjoying his last drink in England before entering "never, never drink land," America. John was purchased for an American circus and came across the big drink in a bungalow all his own. Watch for John on his arrival. We'll show him on this page. (Int.)



TODAY'S LESSON—Well, girls and boys, what is that peculiar looking thing at the top? No, Anatasia, it isn't a mop. It's a black silk Peruvian cavy. What is a cavy, Oscar? Yes, of course, it's another name for Guinea pig. In the picture below we have the English breed of cavise, or Guinea pigs. The family seems to be at dinner, so we will take up the lesson tomorrow. (U. U.)

IT'S A NICE LADY-LIKE GAME—The players nearly always come through the game with nothing more than a busted knee or a broken neck or somethin'. It's lacrosse to be exact. The photo shows a spirited clash between the Surrey and Kent women's teams at Dartford, England. Imagine being married to one of these club wielders. Notice the position of the ball and rackets. (U. & U.)

BARE-BACK EXPERT—The young lady is not a rider, merely a model showing a cupla yards of her spinal column and a remarkable dress of silver gauze and lace over blue. Has a touch of palest pink in the rosee at the girdle. (K. & H.)

Rules of the Movie Play Title Test

The Boston American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser's new Movie Play Title Test is a test of skill and judgment open to all readers of the Boston American and Boston Sunday Advertiser, irrespective of age, living in any city or town in New England or Canada.

Two hundred and nineteen cash awards will be given for the best titles submitted by readers who submit the largest percentage of correct titles to the 60 pictures to be published one each day consecutively in the Daily American and Sunday Advertiser.

All employes of the Boston American, the Boston Sunday Advertiser and their families are disqualified and barred from participating in the awards.

The Test will consist of 60 pictures, representing the title of a Moving Picture Play, to be printed one each day in the Boston American and Boston Sunday Advertiser, beginning Sunday, February 27, 1921.

Participation in any other contest which has been conducted by the Boston American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser will not debar anyone from entering this test.

Every participant or any or all members of a family will be allowed to submit one set of pictures, but each must contain only ONE TITLE to each picture, and no participant shall be entitled to more than one award and not more than one award shall be given to any one family.

Each and every title must be neatly written or printed on the cards furnished by the Boston American or Boston Sunday Advertiser, or a pen and pencil copy thereof, and the name, age, address, occupation, etc., of the participant on each title blank.

Do not send your titles in "list" form, i. e., do not write titles under one another on a piece of paper.

In case there are not enough sets of correct titles, awards will be given to the person submitting the nearest correct solution, giving weight to skill and judgment.

In case of a tie, awards will be made on the basis of neatness, judgment and accuracy, but if the tie cannot be decided in that way the tied participants will receive similar awards.

Under no circumstances should participants send in their titles before the end of the Test, as any sent in before the last picture is printed will not be considered. KEEP your titles from day to day and at the end of the Test arrange them in numerical order and then send them in all together at one time.

Time will not be a factor in making the awards. The first set sent in after the Test closes will stand no better than the last one submitted.

All titles must be delivered to the Boston American Movie Play Title Headquarters at No. 30 Bumper street, Boston 9, Mass., either by mail or in person within the specified time limit which will be announced later.

All envelopes or packages containing titles must be legibly addressed as follows: "Movie Play Title Editor, No. 30 Bumper street, Boston 9, Mass." And each envelope or package must bear the name and address of the sender legibly written or stamped on the upper left-hand corner.

As all pictures in the Test will contain written or printed matter, it is absolutely necessary that the package be fully prepaid at postal letter rates, as only this character goes in the postoffice as first-class matter. The Boston American and the Sunday Advertiser reserve the right to refuse to consider any sets of titles on which charges for postal delivery are not fully prepaid.

There will be no title or answer book to buy. Lists of Movie Titles will be printed in the Boston American and in the Boston Sunday Advertiser. This list appearing will contain among others the correct titles.

Participants who desire further information should address their inquiries to the Movie Play Title Editor, No. 30 Bumper street, Boston 9, Mass. Questions will be answered by or by personal interview in the columns of the Boston American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser. If participants desire personal replies, they should enclose sufficient postage for a reply to their mail address Main Office or call in person.

The Boston American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser reserve the right to make any change in, or addition to, these rules that they may deem necessary for fairly and impartially conducting the Test and the decision of the Boston American Movie Title Editor on any question which may arise during the contest shall end the entry of a participant is a complete acceptance of all conditions and regulations now made or to be made.

DETAILS OF THE MOVIE PLAY TITLE TEST, WITH NAMES OF THE CO-OPERATING THEATRES, WILL BE FOUND ON PAGE 8

HOOVER'S FALL SEEN IN HIS ZEAL, SAYS HAPGOOD

By NORMAN HAPGOOD,

Editorial Correspondent of Boston American.

Washington, March 25.—Nobody from reading the papers could guess at the amount of talk caused in Washington by the conflict over Russia inside the ranks of the administration. I do not mean that Colonel Harvey's latest fire-eating on the subject has attracted any attention, for I do not think it has, in spite of its extraordinary impropriety, but around Mr. Hoover's utterances deep and serious currents have been moving.

Norman Hapgood

In order to understand what is happening it is necessary to visualize Mr. Hoover's place in the present government. It is an interesting fact that he was one of the four men whom President Harding had in his mind from the beginning for his cabinet, provided political developments enabled him to get them in. One was his manager, Daugherty, attorney-general, now the principal spokesman on office-filling. Another was Secretary Wallace of the Department of Agriculture, the third was Mr. Hughes, and Mr. Hoover was the fourth.

President Harding is taking the opportunities of his office more seriously than some people give him credit for. Some of his conceptions look far ahead. For example, the part of his inaugural address in which he takes most pride is the suggestion that, if we get into any wars in the future nobody shall be allowed to make a cent out of those wars. It is his conviction that if laws were passed taking away in advance all possible war profits, there would not be any more wars. That is not the side of the President's mind that is generally known to the public.

Enemies Count on Hoover's Impatience

The inclusion of Hughes and Hoover in the cabinet sprang from the serious side of the President's thought. Each step was not a mere concession to non-partisan opinion. It was also a genuine desire to use the highest talent he could get hold of. With Mr. Hughes he has had no trouble. That gentleman is attending to his job and attending to it hard, and the talk of politicians about getting rid of him becomes more and more faint.

Mr. Hoover is in an extraordinary position. If his talents alone were in question he would emerge from his cabinet experiences the outstanding figure in the whole group. What he lost when he went from non-political administrative work for Belgium and Spring would be more than gained back here in a few months time of the first class job he was doing, but he has not had the chance. How One Man Reopened His Factory

The Best Doctor for a Big Business Is ADVERTISING

Copyright, 1921, Star Company

This is not written to help advertising in any publication. It is written for the benefit of thousands of factories that have closed down in the United States. More especially for the benefit of millions out of work.

One manufacturer found himself overstocked. He had closed his factory, decided to go out of business, and was wondering what to do with the accumulated merchandise.

Fortunately for him, he met and talked to John A. Dickson, general manager of the Herald-Examiner in Chicago.

Mr. Dickson explained to him the merchandising machinery that now forms part of every Hearst newspaper. He told him of the seventy-six sales centres in Chicago, how to reach them, just how his merchandise could be sold and his factory reopened by reaching not merely readers of the Herald-Examiner, able to buy his stuff ten times over, but by coming in DIRECT BUSINESS CONTACT with every merchant, big and little, able to distribute the goods.

This particular manufacturer, and the particular group of workmen put out of work by his difficulties, were manufacturers of ironing tables, a sort that can be set up, then folded and put away, occupying little space. The problem was to REACH DIRECTLY THE WOMEN interested in ironing-boards. Grocery stores, of which there are more than 6,000 in Chicago, sell washtubs, washboards, washing soap, but had not sold ironing-boards.

Mr. Dickson's young men showed the grocers, by personal visits and on the telephone, that they could display this particular froning table, all set up, putting canned goods, laundry soap, etc., on top of it, making it useful instead of an incumbrance.

They gave the worried maker an exact list of all retailing places, and an exact time-saving route to be followed by the salesmen.

Then a brief advertising campaign began. If you would like details, write to the president of the Kid-Jid Products Corporation, of Waukegan, Illinois.

In three weeks the accumulated stock that had caused this particular manufacturer to close his factory was completely sold out, HIS FACTORY WAS OPEN AND RUNNING AT FULL SPEED, his men all back at work. Read the manufacturer's own statement at the end of this editorial.

Business men, manufacturers, all that have anything to sell, remember that what steam is to an engine, ADVERTISING is to a business, a fixed factory or an idea.

When a man is sick he does not lie down and say, "Now I think I'll quit and die." He sends for a doctor, gets up and goes on again.

When a factory or business is sick, the owner should not close it down, discharge his men and let it die. He should send for the doctor, which is the RIGHT KIND OF AN ADVERTISING MAN, and he should take the medicine prescribed, which is THE RIGHT KIND OF AN ADVERTISING MEDIUM, and that is the kind THAT REACHES THE MOST PEOPLE.

Remember that there is NO SUBSTITUTE FOR CIRCULATION, just as there is no substitute for fresh air, fresh water, or sunlight.

To sell goods in Chicago, write to the Herald-Examiner and to the Chicago American. Between them they can give you a circulation close to a million every day, and THEY COVER CHICAGO THOROUGHLY. They can give you what is more important, immediate contact with every retail selling spot, whether it be a garage, a grocery store, a butcher shop, a drug store, or any other retailing proposition.

For New York city, see the business manager of the New York Evening Journal and the New York American. These two newspapers cover the field in the morning and in the evening, giving a net paid week-day circulation of more than a million copies at three cents per copy, and a net paid Sunday circulation of more than a million and ninety thousand at TEN CENTS a copy. If you have for sale what the people would WANT, if they HEARD about it, those two newspapers can sell all that you have, and ten times more than you can produce.

For Boston and the New England States, take your problem to the manager of the Boston American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser. For San Francisco, see the San Francisco Examiner, a paper more powerful in its field, more overwhelming in its control of territory, than any other paper in the United States or in the world.

In Los Angeles the Examiner will do for the able advertiser and manufacturer in his field what the Chicago Herald and Examiner does in its field.

In Atlanta, the Atlanta Georgian; in Washington, the Washington Times; in Milwaukee, the Wisconsin News, offer to worried business men, or "sick factories," an opportunity to find health and renewed activity.

You have heard men speak with gratitude of the Mayos, wonderful surgeons that restore health, or of Dr. Evans, the great diagnostician.

Here is a business condition that was cured by the right kind of a doctor—ADVERTISING.

These extracts from a letter to the Chicago Herald and Examiner will interest every man whose factory is sick, or whose business is ailing:

"Waukegan, Ill., Dec. 13, 1920.

"Mr. George Hartford,
"Manager National Advertising,
"Chicago Herald and Examiner,
"Chicago, Illinois:

"Dear Mr. Hartford—

"Three weeks ago, when Mr. Olsen and I walked into your office, we had $30,000 worth of ironing-boards on hand and our plant was closed down.

"Last Tuesday, just eighteen days after we signed our contract with you and began our distribution campaign under your direction, our entire stock had been sold, and we reopened our factory. Today we are running at full capacity.

"This is such a remarkable tribute to the efficiency of your organization and to the value of advertising in the Herald and Examiner that I am impelled to tell you that I should consider it a privilege to discuss my experience with any prospective advertisers you might care to refer to me.

"You are at liberty to use this letter in any way you see fit.

"Respectfully yours,
"KID-JID PRODUCTS CORPORATION,

AMERICANS CAN WIN SEA RIGHTS

Nellie Bly Urges U. S. Ship Owners, Officers and Seamen to Present United Front to Foreigners Opposing Their Interests.

By NELLIE BLY.

THERE is war on that is vitally important to Americans and the prosperity of the United States to its foreign trade and to its defense in time of attack by foreign nations.

That is the war, silent but deadly, which is being made upon American boats and American seamen.

Everything that is possible to be done to disqualify American-owned boats and American-born seafaring men. From all the evidence submitted to me daily it is impossible to believe otherwise than that deliberate attempts are made by foreign crews and officers employed upon American boats to discredit these boats and to injure American shipping.

American seamen are so persecuted when they do obtain isolated positions with foreign officers and foreign crews that life is made absolutely unbearable. It is the custom of these foreigners to so rail against America and Americans that only a man without blood in his veins could endure the endless insults to his people and his government.

Bad Policy for Shipowners

The American shipowners who think they are gaining something by hiring at lower prices alien seamen are only ruining American shipping, their investments and their prospects. For with cunning deliberation and scheming these aliens are pledged and prompted to use every possible means to disqualify and discourage American ships and American shipowners.

The only possible way of combating this insidious war upon American rights and American progress is for the American shipowning companies to stand firmly together, unafraid and determined to keep their boats upon the seas. They will not lose by hiring American seamen, even though their ships must be cleaner, their food must be fresher, their treatment of the men more human. All these features only help to establish them more firmly and to give them a superiority upon the water.

But as the American owners of ships must, if they would be successful, employ only American seamen, so American shippers who desire to maintain the trade prosperity of America, as well as its defense in case of war, must ship their goods exclusively on American boats.

And the government, too, must have a housecleaning. Charges are being made continuously that the government is employing aliens upon army transport ships; upon immigrant inspection ships; upon custom house inspection tenders and upon lightships.

These charges are made with names and facts and figures. It is plainly the duty of the government authorities to make an immediate investigation and to eliminate from all such positions aliens and even men with first papers. Certainly, it is the moment when all red ink ticket men must be dismissed.

We shall rely upon Admiral Benson and Senator Wesley L. Jones, with their assistants and co-workers, to start an immediate investigation and housecleaning.

In case of war it is of the utmost importance to the safety of America that every one of these positions shall be filled by 100 per cent. pure Americans who will be ready to defend our country. We cannot deliver ourselves wholesale into the hands of our enemies by employing them on lightships, or army transports and on our merchant marine.

Here is a letter I received recently:

"Dear Miss Bly:. I am a 100 per cent. native American, second mate, having served in the U. S. N. for eight years in various ratings from apprentice seaman to chief quartermaster. Upon the termination of my second enlistment (two honorable discharges) I took out a second mate's license in August, 1920. Since then I have been employed in my official capacity less than a month on temporary jobs aboard two vessels. During that time I was the only American speaking officer aboard either vessel, with the exception of one American master, and this last was a rare occurrence.

"Just visit any New York ship officers' organization and try to converse with the members. TRY IT. It would be wise to bring a staff of interpreters. Frankly, Miss Bly, it is a truism that Uncle Sam wants no American Merchant Marine. Ship owners easily obtain foreign crews to man American ships—or, to be more technically correct, ships with American flags—for less money. Strong backs and weak minds is preferred stock. I for one absolutely refuse to accustom myself to the unsanitary condition and iron-hand treatment which the foreign element considers the usage of a good sailor.

"One of my two vessels had on it for officers a master, first mate and third mate. These three were one hundred per cent. Scandinavian. I (by mistake, I guess) was the other officer. The Scandinavian with the third mate's license was acting second mate. I was acting third mate, drawing a third mate's salary. After I was assigned to the vessel I was obliged to share the stateroom with the acting-second mate, my superior officer. On my night aboard I fell asleep in this stateroom only to be awakened by a couple of rats who squeaked indignantly at finding an American sharing the bunk with them. After pacing the cold deck the remainder of the night my stateroom mate relieved me and ridiculed me as scathingly as his limited English allowed and until I almost felt ashamed of myself for objecting to a couple of bubonic bed fellows.

Offered a Job

"When the vessel was laid up, the master, in an outburst of benevolence offered me a job as seaman if I would stay aboard seven nights a week, from 6 p. m. to 8 the following morning. For this I would receive eight hours' straight pay. I was told that I, having an officers' license, no other officer need be aboard at night.

"I ungratefully packed my bag and 'took the air,' and thanks to untiring efforts, I located a job ashore driving a flivver for $23 a week, with no Scandeboovian' or 'Limejiuce' to lay the American law down to me.

"I advise my fellow American officers to 'Go thou and do likewise' until the United States gets to be an 'American country.'

"The war MADE many patriotic. It takes a REAL AMERICAN to show patriotism in these piping times of peace.

"Miss Bly, I salute you.

"ONLY AN AMERICAN."

-:- The 'Cello -:-

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

WHILE the big bass drum boomed like thunder,
And the music fell like rain,
And the air was rent asunder
With a jubilant martial strain,
The 'cello seemed talking under
Its breath, like a thing in pain.
And I questioned, "Why, oh, 'cello,
Are you dipping your notes in tears,
When the joyous voice of each fellow
About you is charged with cheers,
And the stern old world grows mellow
And glad with the strain it hears?"

Then the 'cello's voice replying
Said, "Mine is the grief always
To remember the dead and the dying,
While happier comrades play
For the victor with banners flying,
And the living who gained the day."

AIR A FLUID WHILE IT IS NOT A LIQUID

By Garrett P. Serviss

"I do not quite understand what you mean when you say that it is a characteristic of the air that it is a fluid and not a liquid.—M. E. P."

YOUR misunderstanding apparently arises from your regarding "fluid" as synonymous with "liquid," which is not the case. Both liquids and gases are fluids. The air is treated in physics as a gaseous fluid; water as a liquid fluid. The two kinds of fluids are together contrasted with solids. The gaseous fluid, air, may by pressure and refrigeration be made to assume the form of the liquid fluid called "liquid air."

In its ordinary condition air is fluid without being liquid. I might, of course, have said that it is a characteristic of air that it consists of matter in the gaseous state, but then your curiosity would not have been piqued and your memory engaged by the significance of the term "fluid."

You may be interested in turning over in your mind Sir Oliver Lodge's very happy definition. "A solid has volume and shape; a liquid has volume, but no shape; a gas has neither volume nor shape."

This may be interpreted as follows: If you throw a solid into vessel the solid will retain its own shape and also, of course, its own volume, or cubic content; if you pour a liquid into a vessel, the liquid, though retaining its volume, will take the outline or shape of the vessel, filling it, however, only as high as its quantity or volume permits; if you introduce a gas into a vessel, if the vessel is open the gas will escape, and if it is closed the gas will not only assume the shape of the vessel, but will completely fill it, thus assuming its volume also. And if you enlarge the volume of the vessel the volume of the gas will be similarly enlarged.

Restore Old Railroad Rates

Editor Boston American:

Beg to suggest that you at once start a campaign in favor of the restoration of freight rates to those in force prior to August 26, 1920, when the 40 per cent. increase was made.

Your influence through the Hearst chain of newspapers from here to the Pacific Coast should prove a powerful medium in effecting this important result. Results since last August 26 have proven the fallacy of the increased freight rates as a revenue tariff wall between the East and discharge of hundreds of thousands of railroad men. It has also made what is practically a tari wall between the East and the West and Middle West, as freight rates are so high that one section cannot do business with the other. It is time to get back to the policy of the department stores—big sales and small profits.

What is needed to give business a big start and boom is to get back again to normal rates existing before August 26, 1920. Remember that freight rates were increased two or three times before that date, and by the advance of 40 per cent. (the last increase) it killed all the good derived from the previous increase in rates made by the railroads. I make this statement as much in the interest of the railroads as for the public welfare.

BOSTON BUSINESS MAN.

Wit and Wisdom

Too much frankness with a friend becomes criticism of an enemy.

There is no tainted money that doesn't soon get washed clean with the sweat of toil.

Royalty that boasts blue blood in its veins had ancestors with red blood on their hands.

We can judge a man by the way he spends his leisure as well as the way he spends his money.

When a man has no pardon for the faults of another, it is because he has used up his forgiveness in freely pardoning his own.

Unfortunately, there are no glasses that will correct short-sightedness of the mind.

UNIVERSAL FAD FOR PRESSING 'PANTS'

By The Spectator

OMAHA, Cedar Rapids, Oshkosh and points West, all have establishments called, picturesquely, after the turgid fancy of the Mississippi Valley and beyond, "Pressary," "Pantorium" and the like.

In other words, a thriving business goes on throughout these United States in the way of pressing trousers.

It would be interesting if some statistical shark were to furnish us an estimate of how many million dollars are spent each year by the male section of the country for the purpose of maintaining a nice, sharp ridge down the front of the trousers leg.

Let us, for the sake of the effectiveness of definiteness, say that three million seven hundred and sixty-five thousand and nine dollars and thirty-seven cents per year is spent on shapening the front of pantaloons. If anybody doubts these figures let him prove them wrong. Anyway, they sound well.

Universal Fad

And it is $3,765,009.12 too much. For the whole industry is not worth a quarter.

It is a fad, a universal fad, to be sure, but still a fad.

The idea probably originated in the desire to give the impression that the wearer owns many, many trousers and his valet has just taken these out of the press for this occasion.

As far as that goes, the custom of wearing trousers at all is a recent fad. Nobody wore them a hundred years ago, two hundred, anyhow.

Trousers, or pantaloons, were originally a comic costume, worn by the clown in shows, the very name being derived from Pantaloon, the name of the funny man in all comedies.

And they will always be funny. Nor custom nor fashion's dictum can prevent them from being forever intrinsically absurd.

They are the despair of the sculptor. A bronze statue, where the hero wears them, looks as if he were standing on a pair of brass cannon.

Word "Pants"

The word "pants" is an abomination to etymologists. Horace Greeley laid down the rule to a reporter on the Tribune, who wrote of some gentlemen's pants: "Gentlemen wear pantaloons; genteel wear pants."

And the word "Pantorium," the illegitimate issue of a cross between the sacred word "pants" and the bombastic word "emporium," is the peculiar triumph of pretentious vulgarity.

Its only rival would be "Pressary," which is a worthy companion to the Los Angeles term "grocerateria" and which are words formed in imitation of "cafeteria."

Why not go back to knickerbockers? Why not revert, in the style of G. Washington and T. Jefferson, and mold our unspeakables in such fashion as shall give a young man a chance to show a handsome leg without fear and without reproach?

IT'S THE WIFE THAT COUNTS

There are many husbands who object to the expenditure of the wife and family and complain bitterly about having to give so much money to them for certain purposes, but on the other hand do not hesitate to buy exactly whatever they like for themselves.

Why should a wife not feel as free as her husband to buy what she needs if she is no more extravagant than her husband?

Often when a man is out with his wife and he wants to give the impression that he is a good fellow, he will spend money more freely than his wife wants him to, but when his wife asks for a comparatively small sum he objects or gives it grudgingly.

Why not more effort to show your wife what a good fellow you can be, rather than to convince others that you have a "heart as big as an ox."

Your wife would appreciate what you do for her at its full value, the other fellow will criticise you in the light of what he thinks he knows of your income and likely as not say you are foolish.

Your little pal is the one you should seek to please.

A Cheerful Note

"All things are full of iniquity and vice; more crime is committed than can be remedied by restraint. We struggle in a huge contest of criminality. Daily the passion for sin is greater. The shame in committing it is less."

This is not the outcry of one who looks with alarm upon the orgies of the profiteers, the operations of the auto bandits, the greed of landlords, and the pernicious activities of the grafters, gamblers, market manipulators and crooked politicians. It is the philosopher Seneca's description of conditions in Rome 2,000 years ago.
